Canadian Press

Point Barrow, Alaska, Feb. 5.—After being marooned for months on the ice-locked fur trading ship Nanuk at North Cape, Siberia, Miss Marion Swenson, Seattle, High School girl, her father, Olaf Swenson, head of the fur trading company which owns the ship, and Capt. M. I. Eielson, United States aviator, who were lost November 9 while flying from Teller to North Cape, Alaska, were rescued today by a motor schooner.

Miss Swenson radioed here that they were to attempt the flight aboard a Fairchild plane piloted by Capt. Pat Reid, one of the Canadian aviators sent north to engage in the rescue. Pilot Reid, Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, United States aviators, who were lost November 9 while flying from Teller to North Cape, Alaska, were rescued today by a motor schooner.

It was to take off Swenson and his daughter and Captain Eielson were flying from Alaska when their plane was wrecked November 9 in northeastern Siberia and the two lost their lives.

COUNCIL HOLDS KEY TO SCHOOL BUILDING PLAN

Saanicht School Board Suspends Decision Until Council Interviewed

All Problems Subordinated to Necessity For United Backing of Loan By Law

The Saanicht School Board this afternoon is inspecting prospective sites for the new high school, a majority of the properties being adjacent to Quadra Street. Among those most seriously considered are a parcel on Falmouth Road, the Rock Street park which was offered by the council last spring, and a fine tract on Reynolds Road, facing the new sports centre.

The municipal council last year offered the board a large tract on Tatter Drive, but this is not being considered as a site. It enters into the problem because the council is on record as prepared to set the area aside for park purposes if the Rock Street park is accepted by the school board.

Following the inspection the board will meet at the Municipal Hall and select the site. A special meeting of the board yesterday evening devoted three hours to clarifying the ideas of the trustees. Despite persistent efforts to attain agreement on many points, it was found necessary to leave unsettled all questions of site, size of building, type of construction and even the problem of placing the whole problem of provision of high school facilities on the shoulders of the municipal council.

INAUGURATION HELD TO-DAY IN MEXICO CITY

Rubio Takes Over Office of President of Mexican Republic

Mexico City, Feb. 5.—Pledging his government to five years of hard work in the interest of the common people, Pascual Ortiz Rubio took office today as President of Mexico. The Ambassadors of fifteen nations and the entire diplomatic corps accredited to Mexico were assembled during the inauguration ceremony in formal dress on the platform, which also seated all of the high military commanders, the state governors, the supreme court, magistrates and other important officials.

President Rubio promised above all to work for the people, to strengthen the country and to restore to the nation its heritages. He said his government would be "eminently revolutionary."

T. AFT'S SONS ARE CALLED TO HIS BEDSIDE

Washington, Feb. 5.—Charles F. Taft and Robert A. Taft were called today from Cincinnati, Ohio, to the bedside of Ex-Chief Justice William H. Taft, their father, who is ill here. They are expected to arrive to-morrow.

Robert A. Taft presented the resignation of his father as Chief Justice of the United States to President Hoover on Monday and then left for the Ohio city. The other son has been in Cincinnati for some time. It is understood the two sons were summoned because physicians believe the high blood pressure from which Mr. Taft is suffering to be such that it might cause the heart to fail at any time, although on the other hand it might have no effect for quite a while. Though the doctors to-day reported a slight improvement, it is known they regard his condition as serious and have but little hope for the recovery of the former President.

DOLE BILL IS ACCEPTED BY HOUSE OF LORDS

Threat of Parliamentary Upheaval in Great Britain Is Averted

London, Feb. 5.—The compromise proposal of the unemployment insurance bill which the House of Commons offered the House of Lords last night has been accepted by the majority in the upper house.

This is averted the crisis which for a time threatened a political upheaval, with a possible dissolution of Parliament and a general election. In the House of Lords this afternoon Lord Salisbury said the Conservatives would not oppose the Commons amendment to the Lords' amendment.

This will insure passage of the bill with the provision that it will be effective for three years. The original measure, as it had passed the Commons, had an indefinite term of effectiveness, while the Lords' amendment would have restricted operation to one year.

HOLD-UP IN VANCOUVER FIFTY-EIGHTH THIS YEAR

Vancouver, Feb. 5.—Two men, one of them armed, held up James Harley, Dunsmuir Street, at Burrard and Dunsmuir Streets at 11.30 p.m. Tuesday and robbed him of $59. It was the seventh outrage of this kind this month. Hold-ups and attacks by bandits on Vancouver citizens since the new year have totaled fifty-eight.

Two burglars were frightened away from the home of George Mackay on West Nineteenth Avenue early to-day. Mr. Mackay was awakened by noises and went downstairs. He saw one man jumping out of a window and the other escaped by the door. Nothing was taken. Miss Tarantino, East Sixth Avenue, reported a radio stolen from her home. A burglar obtained miscellaneous articles from the home of Miss R. N. Smith on Burrard Street.

EMPIRE TRADE PLANS VOICED BY BALDWIN

Pledges British Conservatives to Increase, But Not Empire Free Trade

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent
London, Feb. 5.—Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, to-day, in the House of Commons, declared he stood for a free hand in the safeguarding duties on British imports and for extension of imperial preferences. But, he added, in a brief reference to agriculture: "I am not proposing to tax food."

CONFERENCE SUGGESTED

Chief among the planks of his programme was the proposal of arrangements between British industries themselves and not by politicians. He suggested that as a first step conferences should be held between representatives of such selected industries as steel, cotton and wool, to see whether agreements could not be made on such matters as the following:

1. The lines and types of products which Dominion industries might exclusively manufacture for their own markets.
2. The lines and types which British manufacture should sell in the British market.

From both of these would come proposals for adjustment of the safeguarding duties and the necessary mutual preferences, assistance, which British industry could afford in technical matters; finance; possibly a supply of skilled labor and facilities for combined research.

Such an agreement, Mr. Baldwin suggested, might lead to a selling arrangement in the export market. "The British steel manufacturers have their joint export committee. Why is there not a similar imperial arrangement?" he asked. (Concluded on Page 17)

Premier MacDonald Hopes Conference Will Follow Naval Limitation Parley

London, Feb. 5.—An international disarmament conference dealing with land as well as sea forces, after the Five-Power Naval Limitation Conference has been completed, was predicted to-day by Premier MacDonald. The Prime Minister, replying to a question as to whether he would consider calling a conference of the great powers with a view to a reduction of military forces, pointed out the disarmament problem, including land forces, had been under careful consideration by the League of Nations for some time.

"I hope," he said, "that at the conclusion of the Five-Power Conference, a further meeting of the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament will be held which will enable the next Assembly of the League to arrange for summoning an international disarmament conference."

NEW RULES PROPOSED FOR BROKERS DEBATED

WOMEN ARRIVE FIGHTING FOR MRS. MACGILL

Vancouver, Feb. 5.—At a lengthy meeting of the members of the Vancouver Stock Exchange yesterday afternoon, the whole situation regarding the brokerage business and the new legislation projected was discussed.

It was felt that while the meeting of the Attorneys-General of the various provinces might come to an agreement on many questions affecting future trading procedure, brokerage and clients should be posted weekly. It was claimed by the members that this was an impossible demand, incapable of being complied with in such a way as to be of any service. The time it would take for the completion of such an inventory would be considerable, and before it could be posted or published, the situation would be entirely changed so far as the status of the market position of the traders was concerned.

OLD TRANSACTIONS
Announcement was made also of a demand being made of the stock exchange in respect to transactions that were completed nearly two years ago at a time when there was not the same efficient clearing house system as at present.

At that time, when the call system was in vogue, records were made largely through "markers" chalking the transactions on the board showing the initials of both the buyer and seller. If the market got the correct buyer and seller it was all right, but often in the excitement of spirited trading it was impossible to be invariably correct.

Some requests have been made of the exchange at this date for verification of transactions transacted back in 1928, and while the exchange staff is endeavoring to comply with the requests, it is being found to be an almost impossible undertaking.

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 5.—The highest authority to-day stated Great Britain, the United States and Japan expected to reach a tentative agreement within a few days for reduction of capital ships, or battleships, in those countries' navies.

This source stated the United States had submitted definite proposals to Great Britain and Japan. While the details were withheld, it was understood the proposed reduction would follow the 5-5-3 capital ship ratio established at the Washington Conference. It was said, however, that the proposed agreement between the three nations would be only tentative, the United States contending it was contingent upon the settling of the cruiser question.

The general problem of battleships is being negotiated now between the delegations of the three countries to the Naval Limitation Conference.

The main attitude of the three delegation chiefs is said to be that there are prospects of readjustment, although thus far there is no agreement between them. The British capital ship total now stands at twenty. The United States had eighteen of the big ships, and the Japanese ten. These limits were set by the Washington Conference.

APPROVED BY FRENCH
Members of the French delegation expressed their approval of the agreement and said they would be in accord with any such development.

The delegations this morning devoted their time to discussions among their own members. As a prelude to the "Big Five" meeting called for this evening, a conference was arranged at St. James's Palace between Premier MacDonald, Secretary Stimson and Premier Tardieu. The meeting will be held an hour before the other session gets under way.

London, Feb. 5.—The chiefs of the delegations to the London Naval Limitation Conference met in St. James's Palace to-day and discussed outstanding problems which have arisen under negotiation during the last few days.

They decided to hold a plenary meeting on Tuesday, starting at 11 a.m., for the purpose of discussing submarines.

To-day's session of the Big Five was brief, lasting only forty-five minutes. It was announced the conference earlier in the day between Premier MacDonald, Secretary Stimson and Premier Tardieu had been held for the purpose of acquainting the French Premier and his cabinet with the negotiations held during his absence in Paris.

CHANGES IN EMPIRE LAWS ARE DRAFTED

Report on British-Dominions Uniformity Conference Is Given to the Public

Far-reaching Amendments
Will Remove Old-time
Anomalies

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—Far-reaching recommendations aimed at bringing legal restrictions surviving from earlier periods into harmony with the present constitutional status of equality of the Dominions with Great Britain are contained in the report, published last night, on the Conference on the Operation of Dominion Legislation, held in London.

The report, as given out here, was accompanied by a statement from Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, who headed the Canadian delegation.

AT EMPIRE CONFERENCE
The recommendations of the conference will be considered at the 1930 Imperial Conference, probably to be held in the fall. If approved, the various legislatures will be called upon to enact legislation where necessary to give them effect.

Although the conference, which opened in London October 8, 1929, concluded December 4, no official report of the proceedings and conclusions reached had been made public. Release of the report came simultaneously in all parts of the empire which were represented at the London conference. The report of the conference covers some fifty printed pages. As explained by Mr. Lapointe, the conference was an outgrowth of the last Imperial Conference.

ALL REPRESENTED
At the conference in London there were delegates from the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State and India. Canada was represented by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice; Dr. O. D. Skelton, Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs; H. E. A. Hawken, Assistant Deputy Minister of Marine; C. P. Flaxton, K.C., Senator Advisory Council, the Department of Justice; R. E. Read, legal adviser of the Department of External Affairs; and Charles R. Buchell of the Nova Scotia bar.

TASK OF DELEGATES
"The task of the conference," says Mr. Lapointe's statement, "was to carry out in accordance with the recommendation of the 1926 Imperial Conference a detailed examination of the legal restrictions on Dominion self-government which still survive from an earlier period, and to recommend the most appropriate means of bringing these legal forms and practices into harmony with the present constitutional position of equality. In some instances these survivals constitute a serious restriction on the power of Dominion legislatures to enact the legislation they may consider necessary to meet their national requirements. In other cases they have created a direct effect, but afford ground for misunderstanding both at home and abroad."

DISALLOWANCE QUESTION
The chief restrictions on the free operation of Dominion legislation which were mentioned in the report of the Imperial Conference of 1926 fall into four classes—The power of reservation or disallowance of measures passed by a Dominion Parliament, except on the advice of His Majesty's Ministers in Great Britain; the presumed inability of a Dominion Parliament to give its legislation extra-territorial effect; subordination to the Parliament of Great Britain, through the doctrine of the common law and its statutory affirmation in the Colonial Laws Validity Act of 1903, which provided that any colonial law repugnant to an act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom should be void and inoperative to the extent of such repugnancy; and the special cases of subordination involved in the legislative and administrative control exercised by the London authorities over merchant shipping throughout the Empire under the Merchant Shipping Act of the United Kingdom—a question repeatedly raised at Imperial Conferences by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Australian and New Zealand representatives.

SOLUTIONS RECOMMENDED
"All these subjects have been dealt with and in all cases a solution has been recommended," Mr. Lapointe's statement proceeds. "In some cases a conventional solution is proposed; in other cases, legislation by the Parliament of the United Kingdom will be necessary. The recommendations provide for a declaratory enactment of the power of a Dominion to make laws having extra-territorial effect, the exemption of Dominion legislation from the Colonial Laws Validity Act, and the empowering of any Dominion Parliament to repeal a British Act so far as it is part of the law of the Dominion. Specific repeal by the British Parliament of certain provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act and Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act is recommended. It is made clear the proposed legislation is not to confer any new powers as to amending the Canadian or Australian constitutions, this being a question to consider by the appropriate Canadian or Australian authorities when they so desire."

CO-OPERATION NEEDED
A distinctive feature of the conference report is the emphasis that co-operation everywhere is required in the common interest. Indeed, freedom and co-operation may be said to be the cardinal principles which inspired the whole report. Reference is made to a number of subjects in which uniform or reciprocal action is necessary or desirable. This aspect received particular attention in connection with merchant shipping legislation. Detailed recommendations are made for uniform or reciprocal action in such matters as qualifications for ownership of a vessel, standards of safety, qualifications for certificates and mutual enforcement of law.
A good deal of consideration was given to the possibility of setting up a tribunal as a means of determining possible differences between members of the British Commonwealth. The conference was impressed with the advantages of such a tribunal, but as the subject was not within the terms of reference, action was confined to recommending that the whole subject should be further examined by all the governments.

NOT SINCE 1873
The power of disallowance, the report explains, means the right of the crown to annul an act passed by a Dominion or colonial legislature. This power has hitherto been exercised (when occasion for its exercise has arisen) on the advice of Ministers in the United Kingdom, but, the report points out, the power of disallowance has not been exercised on relation to Canadian legislation since 1873.
The conference agreed the present constitutional position is that the power of disallowance can no longer be exercised in relation to Dominion legislation. Accordingly, those Dominions which possess the power to amend their constitutions in this respect can, by following the prescribed procedure, abolish the legal right of disallowance if they so desire. In the case of those Dominions which do not possess this power, would be in accordance with constitutional practice that, if so requested by the Dominion concerned, the Government of the United Kingdom ask Parliament to pass the necessary legislation.

CLEARLY STATED
With respect to the Colonial Laws Validity Act, it is suggested the Parliament at Westminster enact legislation declaring that statute does not apply to laws passed by any Dominion. In addition to this declaration the following clause is suggested:
"No law and no provision of any law hereafter made by the Parliament of a Dominion shall be void or inoperative on the ground that it is repugnant to the law of England or to the provisions of any existing or future act of Parliament, or to any order, rule or regulation thereunder, and the powers of a Parliament of a Dominion shall include the power to repeal or amend any such act, order, rule or regulation in so far as the same is part of the law of the Dominion."

LIQUOR PROFIT IN QUEBEC IS LARGE TOTAL

Quebec, Feb. 5.—More than $6,000,000 was handed to the Provincial Treasury of Quebec by the Quebec Liquor Commission in the year 1928-1929, after deduction of all expenses, according to the eighth annual report of the commission, tabled in the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon by Hon. A. R. Macdonald, Provincial Treasurer.

The net operating profit was $6,943,752, to which was added, however, $644,518 in revenue from seizures, making a total revenue of $9,488,267 for the year's operations. Surplus and reserves for the year were shown at a total of $1,688,267 after the turnover to the Government was accounted for. The sales for the year showed $27,007,430 gross receipts, with purchases of stock, other operating charges and general expenses at $9,629,059.

LARGEST RECORDED
It was by far the biggest year the commission had from every point of view, the turnover of 1927-1928 to the Treasury being the next largest at $8,600,000. Sales showed roughly a 33,000,000 increase in 1928-1929 over 1927-1928.

Three new stores were opened during the year, and with the report the total number of stores up to 104, of which eight-one are in the Montreal district and twenty-three in the Quebec area.

PUBLIC WORKS ARE RELIEVING UNEMPLOYMENT

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—When Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, was asked yesterday what would be the next development in connection with the unemployment situation, he said there was a keen appreciation that any projects contemplated to give work should be started as soon as possible.
The Federal Government had taken important steps in this direction. There were public works now in progress throughout Canada which would aggregate well over $20,000,000, he said. This did not include the important contracts for railways, ferries, patrol boats and various purchases by the Department of National Defense. Further, it did not include the Welland Canal and considerable harbor works.

NEW B.C. HARVEST
Public works in the province of Ontario being carried on by the Government of Canada without any assistance from the province or municipalities aggregated about $12,000,000, exclusive of the Welland Canal, he said. In the Prairie provinces and British Columbia another $4,000,000 worth was under construction. This included many public buildings in various centres, three or four Indian schools and a number of "hospitals" along the Pacific Coast.
The Minister of Labor suggested that if the various provinces launched into public works in a similar manner a great deal of relief from unemployment would be forthcoming. For example, he said, the province of Ontario could give a great deal of employment by going ahead with the proposed highway to the Manitoba boundary.

MANY CHURCHES IN UKRAINIA NOW ARE CLOSED

Khar'kov, Russia, Feb. 5.—In the last four months 263 churches of all denominations have been closed by authorities throughout Ukraine. They were converted into schools, hospitals, workmen's clubs and headquarters of village soviets.
In the previous five-year period, 354 churches were abolished in the same territory.
The government yesterday announced the anti-religious movement was becoming very intensive, especially in regions where state collective farms have been established. The Commissariat of Home Affairs is prepared to close additional churches on petitions of workers and peasants.

BILL BRINGS SHARP TEST IN GREAT BRITAIN

British Ministry Plans Three Years as Unemployment Insurance Compromise

Hopes This Plan Will End
Conflict Between Lords and Commons

London, Feb. 4.—The Labor Government moved today to a compromise in the conflict between the House of Commons and the House of Lords over the Unemployment Insurance Bill, which has threatened and still contains the possibility of a political upheaval.

After a crowded meeting of the Parliamentary Labor Party, it was officially announced it had been decided to act on the Government's suggestion to amend the Lords' amendment limiting the bill's operation to one year, so as to provide the measure should continue in force until June 30, 1933, for a term of three years.

This compromise, it was understood, will be proposed in the Commons late to-night, with the hope it will end the conflict.

FIRST IN YEARS
The dispute between the second chamber and the Commons, which has been called that, is the first rupture in several years.
The bill, after passing the Commons, was submitted in the ordinary course of affairs to the House of Lords a short time ago. The second chamber returned the bill with several important changes.
The House of Commons rejected these changes and again sent the bill to the House of Lords for approval, and the House of Lords yesterday, by a vote of 156 to 42, decided to insist on at least one amendment, which would limit operation of the bill to one year. The action resulted in a special meeting of the Cabinet.

LORDS SCORED BY MACDONALD IN COMMONS

British Premier Says Opposition to Unemployment Insurance Bill Is Interference

London, Feb. 5.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald in the House of Commons late last night scored the attitude of the House of Lords on the Government's unemployment insurance bill. Laborites loudly cheered when the Premier, sent the bill back to the Commons' insistence on amending the bill to make it operative for one year only was interference with the rights of the House of Commons to determine how the money of the country should be spent.

The upper chamber Monday night, with its large majority of Conservative peers, sent the bill back to the Commons for the second time with the amending clause.

COMPROMISE PLAN
The bill seeks to maintain and extend the provision of the 1920 Act. The Cabinet and the Parliamentary Labor Party yesterday were understood to have reached a compromise making the bill operative for only three years. The Prime Minister referred to statement of the Speaker that the amendment of the House of Lords raised a question of privilege. It was a money question on which the House of Lords had no right to interfere, he said. The House of Commons had sent the bill back to the second chamber after taking the amendment out. The usual thing in this case was for the Lords to agree. But the Commons was now informed, Premier MacDonald said, by the House of Lords, that so long as a Labor Government was in office, the Upper House would regard none of the privileges of the Commons, but would sit and criticize bills as a sub-committee of the Tory Party.
Laborites again cheered, while Conservatives cried "no."
The Prime Minister admitted the decisions of the Conservatives had put the Government in a difficult position. If the Government dropped the bill in order to get it through Parliament after three sessions under the Parliament Act, then the finances of employment would be bankrupt. Within forty days there would be no money left in the fund.
Angry cries came from the Labor benches.

A GRAVE IRREGULARITY

THE OPPOSITION WAS CLEARLY right in appealing from the ruling of Mr. Speaker Jones in respect of Mr. George S. Pearson's bill to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act. Last Friday the House gave the member for Nanaimo leave to introduce his measure. It was read a first time and ordered printed and placed upon the Order Paper for second reading at the next sitting. It appeared on the Order Paper on Monday; but it had not been printed, consequently the members had no opportunity of considering its contents. The Speaker explained the omission by saying the bill was not in order because it involved the expenditure of public funds—about which there is some doubt, because the fund of the Workmen's Compensation Board is not exactly the same as the Consolidated Revenue Fund. But after the House had given its leave and ordered the bill printed for second reading, the matter was entirely out of the hands of the Speaker. He had no alternative but to allow the bill to progress in the ordinary way. He decided otherwise, however, and three times his ruling was challenged and, of course, upheld by the government's majority.

But there is a great deal more in this matter than the blunder in procedure to which we have referred. The proposal which Mr. Pearson had embodied in his bill is not a political question at all, since it has to do with the well-being of the coal miners of this province. It should have been thoroughly debated. It seeks to correct a condition with regard to compensation for disabilities which at present is not adequately covered by the act. The coal miners are intensely interested in the matter, and Mr. Pearson, representing a constituency on this Island in which the breadwinners for the most part are coal miners, naturally is thoroughly familiar with what is necessary in this regard. But the arbitrary action of the government has rendered his praiseworthy efforts futile. Incidentally, it is time the government realized that it is not its duty to reject good legislation merely because it emanates from an opposition member. The immediate victims of the government's repudiation on Monday of its action on Friday are the miners of the province.

A HEALTHY CORPSE

ONE OF THE CHIEF TROUBLES OF Hon. R. B. Bennett at the present time seems to be the decrease of 100,000 cows in this Dominion. His worries appear to be increased by the fact that while a few years ago Canada exported 25,000,000 pounds of butter, last year she had none to ship out, but actually had to buy 32,000,000 pounds from the Antipodes. He contends this importation should stop, the implication being that he would increase the duty on the Australasian product and put an end to the provision of the Canadian-Australasian treaty which applies to this commodity.

Let us take the opposition leader at his word when he says that the importation from the Antipodes is destroying the dairy business of Canada and see what grounds he has for his opinions. Assuming he is correct that there are 100,000 fewer cows than there were a few years ago, we can tell him that there still are 4,000,000 left. The reduction is about two and one-half per cent. Will it be argued seriously that this is likely to be fatal? On the contrary, there have been other fluctuations. We are reminded, for instance, that in 1923 we had 86,000 fewer cows than in 1922. That was two years before the Canadian-Australasian treaty went into effect. Upon what would Mr. Bennett place the blame for this shrinkage?

Without any political axe to grind, an authority in The Financial Post explains why there is this shortage of 100,000 cows just now. United States buyers went into eastern Canada last year with their pockets full of money and bought 229,000 cows at top prices. He says "this is all to the good, since it is a profitable trade and gives the farmer another string to his bow." There is another side to the question, according to the same authority, which must be considered, and that is that while the number of cows has decreased, the production of milk, the basis of the dairy industry, has not. We are told that, owing to the increased productivity per cow, the production of milk from 1924 to 1928 increased no less than seventeen and one-half per cent., while during the same period butter production decreased by one per cent. Dealing with this aspect of the situation, we read further:

There are eighteen branches to the dairy business and the division of milk among them varies in keeping with market conditions. The value of milk sold to be used in its natural condition was greater last year than the total value of butter and cheese produced in the Dominion. The eastern farmer found it more profitable to sell a large amount of his milk in the United States than to turn it into butter at home; and it was the vacuum thus created that provided a market for much of the New Zealand butter imported. It was a good and profitable arrangement all round.

The Financial Post writer gives official figures of butter production covering some years. For Ontario the production in 1928, while less than in 1927, was larger than in any other previous year; in the same year it was larger in Manitoba than in any previous year except 1926 and 1927. The falling off was in Alberta and Saskatchewan. "This," says the writer, "happens nearly every time the western farmer becomes pre-occupied with wheat crops." This is borne out by the fact that the production of butter in 1929 showed a marked increase over 1928 in all three western provinces.

It has been established, of course, that the reason why butter exports have ceased is that the butter is being sold in this country at higher prices than could have been obtained for it abroad, if it had been sent to the British market, for instance. Dr. Ruddick, National Dairy Commissioner, told a committee of the House of Commons at the 1929 session that in the last three years domestic butter prices had been from two to fourteen cents higher than the export figure. This ought to please even Mr. Bennett.

THE NEWS FILM

CANADIAN CAMERAMEN AND PRO-ducers are trying to persuade the Ontario government to establish the quota of at least one reel a week in Ontario picture houses of a Canadian or British news film.

While there are many excellent films being shown at Canadian picture houses, the advent of the talkie seems to have crowded out some of those excellent travel and natural history studies which were not only interesting but instructive for young and old alike.

The almost complete disappearance of this kind of entertainment has been followed by very considerable curtailment of the news film, which, since it deals with the most spectacular current events, always is worth seeing.

DOING GOOD WORK

ALTHOUGH THERE ARE IN CANADA to-day many prosperous British settlers who have good reason to sing the praises of the British Dominions Emigration Society, there are still many people who have not heard of this big but silent friend of the newcomer.

The British Dominions Emigration Society has two branches in Canada, one in Montreal and another in Toronto, while actively concerned with Canada and the establishment of immigrants here, the society is of Old Country origin and is supported by the patronage of H.H. the Princess Louise, who is its president, and the Marquess of Salisbury, who is one of its six vice-presidents.

In 1882 it was realized that some substantial aid was a real need in the lives of most settlers arriving in Canada, and that many who did not emigrate from Great Britain were only held by lack of funds and not by lack of ambition to succeed in a new country against any reasonable obstacles. It was understood, at this early date, that these people would only accept aid if discreetly offered, in a way that would not encourage "sponging" or offend their pride and self-respect.

Since that time the British Dominions Emigration Society has been busy at a task which yields no revenue whatever and which, to the ordinary businessman, is a task that has no thanks. But profit, however slight or great, is of no interest to the society. It is a corner-stone of its foundation that interest will not be required nor accepted in any way on money lent to settlers, or intending settlers.

Another clause in the charter of the society permits the granting of money in deserving cases. Thus a deserving settler and his family may borrow several hundred dollars to come to Canada. If his is a deserving case, he will be obliged to pay back only a certain percentage of the principal borrowed. The remainder, amounting sometimes to $200, is wiped off the books of the society—a clear gift, made without ostentation and in such a way as to leave untrammelled the self-respect of the recipient. In any case, no interest is ever paid by the financed immigrant.

Since its inauguration the society has brought to Canada in this way 35,000 settlers. Last year alone it brought 1,000 such new citizens to Canada. Largely responsible for the efficient handling of the many and varied cases and the problem attached to them is R. Gordon Burgoyne, who is in charge of the society's work in Canada, with the exception of Toronto and district, which is directed by S. P. Shantz.

ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY
The Vancouver Province

Canada is not entirely certain she wants to go into this great scheme in co-operation with the United States. She is not sure enough of herself, and not sure of her neighbor. Public opinion, evidently, still requires to be informed, educated, reassured. And it would be better that it should be informed and reassured before any attempt is made to commit the country to the undertaking.

TORONTO BY THE SEA
The Toronto Star

Toronto's harbor was planned, in agreement between municipal and federal authorities, to accommodate large ocean vessels and upper lake freighters. The municipality guaranteed twenty-five million dollars of Harbor Board expenditures on that basis and will have to guarantee another five million dollars to complete the work. The forty deficits of the Harbor Board run from $1,200,000 to $1,600,000, and the total to date reaches $12,000,000. The hope that Toronto would become an ocean port is far from realization and the citizens, while proud of their waterfront, are bearing a heavy financial burden because of the harbor improvements. It does not seem to be too much to say that the people of Toronto should forget their differences and be as one man in demanding the completion of the deep waterway at the earliest possible date.

FEWER DRIVING HORSES
The Brandon Sun

The automobile has revolutionized farm life. It is no longer isolated. Telephones and the radio have done their share in keeping the farm family more in contact with the world and its doings. There are fewer shut-in farms now—until the heavy snow of winter comes. It appears the motor car isn't such a sure friend of the farmer when he wants to visit or get to town in periods of heavy snows of some winters. Then comes the real pinch as the farmer is shut off from traffic. Once a driving horse was a feature of the farm and Old Dobbin and the sister are being milked at a time when the rural citizen and his wife could profit by journeys to conventions, socials, meetings and to the luring shop windows of nearby towns. It would seem to invite a horse laugh—but the loss is a serious one in many phases.

Across the Bay

We are exhausted after our high moments of Monday and we can do nothing but business—We are like one big family as Mr. Pooley transmits his bills through at breakfast speed—and the whole House likes it.

By H. B. W.

I LIFE in the Legislature can be said to have any redeeming feature, any measure of compensation, it is the Legislature's faculty for never remaining the same for two days in succession. Were it not so, life in the Legislature would be even more unbearable than it is, if that were possible. Tuesday showed that the old faculty happily remains, as strong as ever.

YOU WILL recall, if you can remember, the proceedings of the House for twenty-four hours (which is more than most members can do) that on Monday the House was like a roaring lion. On Tuesday it was like a bleating lamb, with remarkably few bleats. The government proposed, the opposition approved, the Speaker beamed, the spectators were bored to tears, and business went on with a rush. It almost seemed as if the House had met for the purpose of business.

APPARENTLY MONDAY'S ninety minutes of fiery passion had burned up all the House's emotional forces for the moment. (They will appear again in due course, however, as strong as ever.) The House in such a genial humor is a very agreeable place indeed. Could such a condition be maintained for a full week the session could easily finish between Sundays, but everyone knew, of course, that nothing of this sort would happen, that the greater the calm before the storm the greater will be the storm afterwards, on which reckoning we have terrible days ahead.

MEWHILE the government took full advantage of its opportunity. The day, therefore, was given over entirely to Attorney-General Pooley, who deluged the House with so much new legislation that the House found itself, for the moment at least, further advanced in its seasonal programme than it has been at this stage for years.

BEHIND THIS readiness of Mr. Pooley must have been many weary days and nights of preparation that the House knows nothing about. Behind it, the House heard privately, was one of Mr. Pooley's well-known hunches. Early last fall that supernatural monitor which guides attorney-generals appeared to Mr. Pooley in a dream, and he dreamed that the opposition would break all precedents by allowing the throne speech debate to collapse almost before it had started. The next morning Mr. Pooley went forth in the places where legislation is made and ordered that it should be made forthwith against any emergency. And behold, it was made, and when the throne speech debate collapsed, as Mr. Pooley had dreamed, and the House clamored for the legislation to be passed, it was instantly forthcoming, to the gratification and surprise of everyone.

MR. POOLEY has a way all his own of piloting legislation through the House. He hammers his bills through as if each one involved his personal honor and vengeance. To watch Mr. Pooley hammering his bills through is refreshing to young and old. Particularly it is refreshing to the old, because Mr. Pooley is forever young. If he should live to be a hundred one imagines that Mr. Pooley would still be a youngster. He refuses to grow up. To him the world has never lost its glamor. To him there is no mystery in the entire mystery of life. For him the universe holds no secrets. With him is no flaw in the scheme of things which cannot be cured by a timely amendment to a minor statute or formal resolution of the Legislature. To him it is utterly inconceivable that anything done by his party could be less than the highest expression of human wisdom. Therefore, with life, death isn't immortality so simple and so satisfactory, he is very happy.

ESPECIALLY HAPPY was Mr. Pooley as he unloaded his avalanche of legislation on the patient House. Each bill he explained and recommended with that gusto which is as much a part of him as his villainous pipe and turned-up trousers. With each he delivered a rapid-fire explanation, like an innocent man who has been accused of a horrible crime and is indignantly denying it. With few out, eyes flashing and desk piled high with notes, he rattled along in the chip-on-the-shoulder inimitable Pooley style.

GLADLY DID the House co-operate with him in his job of Legislature-in-Chief, until Mr. Pooley grew so mail-lover that he found himself telling a breathless opposition how he picked wild penitents on the Cariboo Road last spring to plant them with his celebrated primrose in his Requiem garden. Cheered by the opposition's friendly response, he even recited a little poem of two verses about some gentleman who, through a rather serious oversight, put his foot on the accelerator instead of the brake, and was later gathered together with a broom and dustpan—a tale designed to explain some obscure point in his new automobile law.

THE HOUSE was in the mood for just such humor, and when it is in such a mood it will laugh at anything. It laughed when Mr. Maitland introduced the new Marriage Act and suggested coyly that it should be made compulsory upon Mr. Ian Mackenzie who, as all the world knows, has never yet obeyed this legislation. It even laughed when Mr. Maitland immediately afterwards introduced a new Distress Act, and Mr. Mackenzie said it very appropriately followed the Marriage Act, as it often followed the act of marriage.

EVERYTHING WAS so friendly, indeed, the whole House seemed so much like one big affectionate family that it was just too bad that there should be a sting in the tail of the session. It was Mr. Mackenzie who introduced this necessary unpleasantness by protesting that H.D. Twigg, elegant member for Victoria, had grossly abused the privileges of the House. This offense had been committed when Mr. Twigg had called a meeting of the public accounts committee and signed himself as chairman without being elected by the committee.

MR. TWIGG replied elegantly that the word "chairman" after his name had been inserted as an "accident," and while he denied any intention of trying to force his own election, the House knew that he would be chairman nevertheless.

Discourtesy Charged By Ian Mackenzie

Gross discourtesy and disrespect of the rights and privileges of members of the British Columbia Legislature were again charged by Ian Mackenzie in the House yesterday.

The North Vancouver member produced notices to appear at meetings of the Public Accounts Committee and Private Bill Committee, both signed H. Macdonald, chairman.

It was the unfailing practice of the House for the courtesy that had always been extended to permit the committee to name their own chairman, the member said. He protested against the suggestion the same man was to act as chairman of two major committees. No discourtesy was intended, Mr. Twigg replied. The meetings were called for the purpose of organization, and as it appeared no one else's business to call them he called them. "I am greatly honored to be considered as the possible chairman of two committees, but I won't be," he remarked. "I am going to act as chairman of the Public Accounts Committee. Someone else will be chairman of Private Bills."

WAR CONDITIONS

To the Editor—I was very surprised to read the account of a Gypsy speaker in the report of their luncheon to-day, headed "War Has Filled, Etc." Kindly remind Comrade Sibbald that he was only one of many, so he should take care of such high disquisitions. Let him remember "Honi soit, etc." and explain to his next audience that in view of such conditions as existed, how glorious is the thought that only so few experienced the fifth he speaks of, and the millions who prided in keeping clean, bright and healthy. Let him be reminded, too, that our life by no means was made up of "lice, liquor and gambling." Such an assertion is an insult to those who did not return, as well as those of us who are here to-day.

After all, there was a glamour and a glory, that is an appendage of such business, however doubtful and wholly unnecessary and not to be wished on to any of this or other generations.

CAR MEN ASK PENSION PLAN

B.C. Electric Workers Want to Come Under Superannuation Act

Employees of the B.C. Electric Company are petitioning the government and Legislature to have employees of utility companies which exercise a monopoly in their communities brought under the Superannuation Act. F. G. T. Lucas, K.C., yesterday asked H. D. Twigg, M.L.A., to sponsor the measure.

The act at present applies to the civil service, municipal and school board employees. Mr. Lucas contends that the welfare of employees of utility companies is a matter of direct public concern. No intention to interfere with existing voluntary superannuation agreements, such as the C. P. R. scheme, is contemplated, he says.

No variations in the scheme of the act are asked for the B.C. Electric employees. They ask to have the basis of contributions on a fifty-fifty basis by employees and employers, now prevailing with respect to the groups already covered, applied in their case. They also ask that when seventy-five per cent of the employees of a utility company petition for superannuation that the act be made compulsory on the company. In the case of the B.C. Electric they estimate that contributions of $5 a month per employee by employees and the company alike will be required.

The company has been petitioned for a superannuation scheme but, according to Mr. Lucas, refused to agree. An argument in favor of the bill advanced by Mr. Lucas is that every group brought under a superannuation scheme relieves the public purse of the prospect of having to care for the members of that group under Old Age pension and similar acts to which the taxpayers have to contribute.

MRS. B. T. DRAKE AGAIN REGENT I.O.D.E. CHAPTER

Splendid Reports of Gonzales Chapter at Annual Meeting Yesterday

Mrs. B. Tyrwhitt Drake was re-elected regent of Gonzales Chapter, I.O.D.E., at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon at the home of the honorary regent, Mrs. Curtis Sampson, "Sunset Combe," Newport Avenue. A large bowl of tulips, narcissi and daffodils were presented to Mrs. Sampson from the chapter, in appreciation of her gracious hospitality, and a fragrant corsage bouquet of freesias and violets to Mrs. Drake.

OTHER OFFICERS
Other officers elected were: Honorary vice-regent, Mrs. L. A. Genge; first vice-regent, Mrs. W. Nichol; second vice-regent, Mrs. Parker; secretary, Mrs. A. Chisholm; treasurer, Miss Pitts; educational secretary, Mrs. F. F. Curtis; Echoes secretary, Miss Clearhouse; standard-bearer, Mrs. Saxton-White; councillors, Mesdames R. G. Monteth, A. Gillespie, Harding, Bell, Musgrave, A. Davis, A. Green, Miss Hall and Miss N. Macdonald.

The secretary's report gave a resume of the chapter's activities. The financial statement showed receipts to have been $208.24, expenditures $715.89, with a balance in the bank of $233.55, and $109.19 in the hospital account. Financial assistance was given to the Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, secondary education, Jubilee Hospital, Queen Alexandra Solatium for Crippled Children, Travelers' Aid, and the upkeep of soldiers' graves, Child Welfare and for Christmas hampers for returned soldiers and their families.

In regard to secondary education, the chapter decided to adopt a beneficiary in the person of Miss Charlotte Anderson, and the donation is to be made exclusively towards her education. Some of the members, under the convener'ship of Mrs. Nichol, made and presented to the children of the Solatium, a number of beautiful writing cases for Christmas, which were much appreciated. In addition, assistance was given to the radio fund, the Fleming Ward of the Jubilee Hospital, the Pankhurst Memorial fund, the Sunshine Club, the War Memorial fund, a rural school library and an extensive welfare society of London, England, for mentally disabled soldiers.

SCHOOL PRESENTATIONS
In June, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sampson placed their beautiful home, "Molton Combe," at the disposal of the chapter for a garden fete, which added a considerable sum to the funds, and the chapter also assisted the Municipal Chapter at the opening of the new wing of the Empress Hotel.

The chapter maintains its interest in the Monterey School, and on St. George's Day presented books and a beautiful silver challenge cup in commemoration of Armistice Day. The chapter also assisted in the drive for funds for the National Institute for the Blind.

Mrs. L. A. Davies reported on the library committee's work at the Jubilee Hospital, for which a book shower was held after the meeting.

Six members were installed at the meeting. Regret was expressed at the resignation of Miss Cooke and Mrs. Musket, two energetic officers for many years, and both were made honorary members.

Prior to the annual meeting, the monthly business meeting was held, when a small amount of routine work was discussed.

Cathedral W.A. Hear Address On Sunday Schools

The open meeting of the senior branch of Christ Church Cathedral Women's Auxiliary was held on Monday afternoon in the Memorial Hall, and was opened with prayers, led by the honorary president, Mrs. Cuthbert. Mrs. Cannock, president of the branch, was in the chair, and kindly acted as accompanist for Mrs. Lemon, who charmed the large audience with two songs.

Mr. A. R. Merrick gave a very lucid and interesting account of the causes which led to the forming of the first Sunday schools by Robert Raikes, and of the wonderful results of his work. Following the movement to Canada, Mr. Merrick gave a short outline of its gradual growth, from the first Sunday school at St. Paul's, Halifax, in 1783, to the Red River school, founded by Rev. John West in 1820, and to the work of Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Staines in Victoria in 1840.

The present day work in Christ Church Cathedral was shown, and what the movement has meant to the church, as exemplified by the lives of many of our great missionaries and teachers was very tellingly brought out by the speaker.

An interesting discussion followed the closing of the address, after which tea was served by Mrs. E. H. Bird, Mrs. Benwell and Mrs. Bashford, assisted by other members of the branch.

MISS FRANKS AGAIN HEADS VICTORIA NURSES

Miss Edith Franks was re-elected for the third successive year to the presidency of the Victoria Graduate Nurses' Association at the annual meeting held last evening.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Phillip Kirkness, secretary; Miss Gregory Allen, treasurer; Miss Meta Hodge, convener of sick benefit committee, and Miss O'Brien, registrar.

SISTERS OF CABINET MINISTER

The Misses Ethel and Margaret Lougheed, daughters of Mrs. Lougheed of 1101 Beach Drive, Oak Bay, and sister of Hon. N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Public Works in the Provincial Legislature, are popular members of the younger social set. They were caught by the photographer as they were leaving home during the recent spell of wintry weather.

Annual Reports Show Need of Added Accommodation; Board Elected

The important part played by the Y.W.C.A. in the community, particularly among the young womanhood of the city, was revealed in the interesting annual reports presented at the annual meeting yesterday evening, the second to be held in the new building. Mrs. F. C. Nivn, vice-president, presided in the absence of Mrs. William Russell, president.

ACCOMMODATION TAXED

Emphasis was laid upon the need of increased accommodation in the comprehensive report presented by Miss Bradshaw, the general secretary, who noted that the capacity of the home was taxed to the utmost last year, and that frequently people had to be referred to other places because of lack of room. The business and information office had been exceptionally busy, and a great deal of personal help had been given to those seeking it. The clubroom and parlors had been most popular for meetings and were in constant demand. Four hundred and eleven meetings had been held, representing sixty different societies. In the educational department three new classes had been opened, handicraft, first aid and current events. The social side of the work was also referred to, and this formed no small part in the undertaking of the home.

Among the visitors who addressed the girls was Miss Roe of the Victoria High School; Mrs. Percival Foster of Toronto; Field Secretary of the Y.W.C.A. in Canada, Miss Brock, national president, and Mrs. A. D. Rowell of the National Council, was also a visitor. The financial statement bore evidence of a most successful year, the

TELLS WOMEN OF WONDERS OF SKY

Canadian Club Hears Clever Address By Mrs. F. A. Grondal of Seattle

"The most astounding spectacle man has ever beheld," was the way in which Mrs. Florence Armstrong Grondal, Seattle astronomer, described the stars in the course of an intensely interesting address before the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon on "The Wonders of the Sky." Although the subject was a scientific one, the speaker couched her address in terms easily understandable to the layman, her vivid descriptions of the stars being supplemented by a series of very clever charts.

FAMILIAR MARVELS
The truth of the old adage that "familiarity breeds contempt" was illustrated by Mrs. Grondal in her opening remarks as she referred to the casual way in which mankind accepted the marvels of nature with which he was surrounded. Yet the stars were the most astounding spectacles man had ever beheld, and the science of the stars was the oldest of all the sciences, starting in the days when primitive man lifted his eyes to the heavens and thanked his gods that the sun, moon and stars returned each day to their place in the sky.

Research work began with the progress of civilization. The stars were observed several thousands of years before the invention of the telescope, and the Greeks raised their study to a science. Galileo's little lead pipe was the forerunner of the giant telescopes of today, and Mrs. Grondal described some of the wonderful instruments used in the observation of the heavens.

LURE OF ASTRONOMY
"Astronomy is a beautiful science and has a spiritual value in that it broadens the mind of man and opens up new fields of thought; it is a practical science in that it determines our calendar and assists in navigation in many other fields," observed the speaker, as she urged a more general study of the wonders of the sky.

With the aid of her charts and a bewildering array of figures, Mrs. Grondal described the various constellations and planets and their relations to the world, pointing out the characteristics of each. "Each world has an individual night, for night as we know it does not extend through space. In the moon the days are two weeks long and the nights two weeks long; on Saturn, there is a five-hour day and a five-hour night, while on Mercury the day is only eight days long; the position of the sun affecting these periods in the same way as it determines our day and night and the length of our year," said the speaker.

TEMPERATURES DETERMINED
Mrs. Grondal noted that delicate instruments made it possible for observers to determine the temperature of some of the planets. Owing to its nearness to the sun, Venus was believed to have a tropical temperature. She showed a picture in color of Mars with its polar cap and the red deserts on its southern hemisphere. Certain immense patches of green were believed to be forests or vegetation, and the atmosphere on Mars was very rare. Sunny in the day, the rarity of the atmosphere caused the loss of heat at night, when the temperature went down to about 100 degrees below zero, yet in spite of the intense cold it was believed to be a livable world as man would be inhabiting, according to the speaker.

Mrs. Grondal described the characteristics of the various stars, and of the gaseous nebulae surrounding them. She spoke, among others, of the Pleiades, of the Andromeda constellation and the

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any drugstore, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16 oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make 16 ounces of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

YOUR BABY and MINE

by MRS. E. M. ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

CUP FEEDINGS INTRODUCED EARLY ELIMINATE FUTURE TROUBLE

This department harps to the point of freedom to us women, for our advantages of starting new habits before the old ones become firmly established. There is a real advantage in teaching a baby to use a bottle the second or third month of his life before nursing has become so fixed that he refuses food any other way. There is just as great a need to divorce the baby under one year from the bottle habit before that, too, has become a difficult habit to alter. The following letters illustrate my reasons for this insistence better than pages of advice.

Mrs. C.R.F. has a little girl of seven months whom she admits is spoiled. "For one thing," this mother says, "she won't lie down in bed without a bottle. She never takes it except at bedtime. How can I break her of this? She is so restless at night and has the bottle in her mouth almost constantly. If I take it away she wakes up. Is this nervousness or just a habit? She wets about every twenty minutes in daytime. Is this natural?"

Now by way of contrast, follows this letter from Mrs. P.G.:

"My baby is nearly thirteen months old. When about eight months of age I started feeding him by cup at all but the night feedings. At nine and one-half months I took the bottle away. He is tucked in at 8.30 and sleeps until 7.30. Has a bath, breakfast of orange juice, oatmeal and a cup of milk, sometimes buttered toast or sweetbaked. At noon he has several kinds of vegetables, graham cracker and milk to drink. Sometimes a cracker and milk at 3.30 after his nap, which lasts until then. At night his supper is similar to breakfast. Are there any criticisms?"

None at all, Mrs. P.G. I think everything is just as it should be.

NO NIGHT FEEDINGS AFTER NINE MONTHS

Now for Mrs. C.R.F.'s problems. The bottle habit is just a habit and not nervousness. There is undoubtedly some degree of under-nourishment or even some rickets present since the child is unable to sleep through the night. No child past one year of age often not beyond eight or nine months, needs a night feeding. If he does, something is wrong with the daytime feeding. Please write me and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope so I can send you our leaflet on "Cup Feeding." Meanwhile stop the bottle, at nothing at all is gained by continuing it. If the child doesn't drink milk in daytime use it in the solid foods, giving eggs, meat, cottage cheese, soups, milk puddings, milk in and over the cereal and on vegetables. This will use up from one pint to a quart a day and give the child plenty of nourishment. Have an examination to see that everything is all right otherwise. You did not mention the child's weight or present way of feeding, so it is hard to judge all that might be wrong.

RECREATION

THE talking motion picture is really the child of the telephone!

The efforts to perfect telephone communication naturally led to the study of reproduction and amplification of the human voice, and it is a result of the success of these efforts that the synchronization of sound and picture has become a reality.

So, today, in addition to its activities in connection with radio broadcasting and public address systems, the Northern Electric Company is enabled to contribute still further to the recreation and enjoyment of the Canadian public. This Company manufactures, installs and services the talking picture apparatus, known as the Northern Electric Sound System (Western Electric in U.S.A.), which so rapidly is being adopted by theatres across Canada; nearly 200 already having been installed in theatres from Halifax to Vancouver.

Competition Reaches Fever Heat In National League Contests

THE SPORTS MIRROR

IN NAMING the "rep" rugby team to oppose Vancouver at Brockton Point next Saturday in a McKechnie Cup match the Victoria Rugby Union made a wise move in switching Reg. Wenman to the five-eighths position. Wenman is beyond doubt the brainiest five-eighths Victoria has developed for some time, and it is doubtful if there is another player in British Columbia who can hold down this position as well. Wenman plays a nice game at full-back. He ably demonstrated his ability at this position in the three matches played to date by the local "reps," but he is even more valuable on the offensive and that accounts for the switch.

Selection of Art Webster for the full-back position to replace Wenman is also a good move providing he can stand the graft. A back is called upon to take a lot of knocks and bumps in order to smash up the backs of the opposing team. Webster is a solid, hard-hitting, kick well and has plenty of experience. Another player who might have handled this position ably is "Chuck" Ruffin, member of the B.C.A. Although only a youngster he has been associated with the game for six years, and is a hard tackler and fine kicker. Webster will no doubt make a good back, but he was invaluable to the "reps" as a three-quarter in their last McKechnie Cup game. He was a star. His absence from the three may be missed Saturday.

It will be a great boost for rugby in Victoria if the Caps can take Vancouver into camp. A victory would put Victoria in first place in the series with a fine chance of winning the coveted trophy. It is many years since Victoria held the cup, but local officials have visions of the trophy journeying back this year. The Caps are working hard in preparation for this week's match, and are sure they will field every player well in the pink of condition. If they lose it will be to a better team, and not through lack of condition.

Jumbo Davies boosted his stock considerably Monday night when he gained a well-earned draw with Harry Ketchell, one of the best Victoria bantams, appearing in his first ten-round bout, showed up remarkably well. However, Jumbo will have to be on his toes to-morrow night when he fights Jackie Cantor, Seattle's fightingest boy, in a six-round semi-final to the Tommy Fielding-Joe Marcus cup at the Sound City. Gaston, who has just returned from Los Angeles, where he was to meet "Red" Smith in a main event for the Hollywood Legion Club, but owing to an injury to Datto in training the bout was cancelled, holds a decision over Ketchell.

Ray Barbuti is back again in the good graces of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States in a statement of the track star the other night brings to an end one of the most contentious cases any individual athlete has figured in for some time. Barbuti was indefinitely suspended, last year when, after being summoned before the amateur heads for non-appearance at a track meet, he made the very definite charge that so-called amateur athletes were paid for their services with the knowledge of the amateur union. Barbuti was suspended until he either apologized or proved his charges.

Columns were written about the matter in newspapers all over the continent, but when the present indoor season commenced Barbuti was still ineligible to compete. The other night Barbuti, under A.A.U. officials' a written apology which amounted to a confession of his guilt, to the extent that he couldn't prove the charges he made.

Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics says he isn't a holdout. He simply won't sign until he gets more money. There's a fine distinction there. It simply means that he isn't a holdout but that he won't sign his contract until he gets more money. It's so easily explained.

Young Stribling says he beat Jack DeMare the other night with his famous "back-swing punch." We don't know exactly what that punch is, but we have seen Willie with an awful lot of back fever at certain times.

Walter Hagen played seventy-two holes at Catalina, won $50 and his hotel bill was $200. At Pasadena he played seventy-two holes for $30. Walter hasn't been doing so well on the hole.

Quite a few of the best players have been having operations this year for one thing and another. Burleigh Grimes, the pitcher, wins the palm for operations, however. He has been trying to get $25,000 a year for pitching ball for the Pirates.

Eligibility Of Hoop Teams To Be Settled Saturday

Vancouver, Feb. 5.—Eligibility of Vancouver and District League basketball teams for the Lower Mainland, Provincial and Dominion play down will be fought out Saturday afternoon according to latest reports. The executive of the Lower Mainland Basketball Association will hold a meeting to consider the application of the Vancouver and District League for admission to the association.

Secretary A. Riley of the Lower Mainland Association announced last Wednesday that the Vancouver and District League would not be eligible for the play downs, due to failure to pay fees by December 31. The fees are in now, however, and the eligibility question will be settled Saturday afternoon.

Players and Fans Engage In Fights At Bitter Matches

Eddie Shore Is Storm Centre as Boston Defeats Detroit 3-1; Engages in Fight With Rusty Hughes and Then Hits Eddie Goodfellow and Referee Mallinson After Game Ends; Fans at Rangers-Americans Game Start Fireworks; Canadiens and Ottawa Win

Canadian Press

New York, February 5.—February is perhaps the most important month of the regular season to the teams of the National Hockey League. It is the home stretch of the season, the time when teams are battling and when injuries and other mishaps cause most trouble. And the first few games of the month have been all that is expected of February contests.

Although there was no change in the standing of either division resulting from yesterday's games, at least two of them were as bitter battles as could be found this side of the all-important play-offs. The Boston-Detroit game wound up with a better than usual fist fight on the ice after the Bruins had taken their twenty-sixth victory of the season by a 3-1 score.

In New York it was the gallery that became heated about the sudden spurt of the Americans that gave them a 3-2 victory over their rival Rangers, and the fans started battling while the players took it out in hard, clean play. SHORE THE CAUSE.

The long-suffering Eddie Shore was the cause of the final fireworks at Boston. Having conscientiously tried to avoid such happenings and as many penalties as possible, Eddie became embroiled with another red-hot player, Rusty Hughes of Detroit, and the result was a bit too much for both. Penalties stopped one bout, but it started again after the final bell and Shore took a few swings at Eddie Goodfellow and Referee Mallinson before he was calmed.

The final Ranger-American clash of the year at New York was all that was predicted for it. Five minutes before the bell they were deadlocked. Then the Rangers felt most of the loss of their injured defense star, Ching Johnson, for two of them drew penalties at once and the rest were unable to hold off the determined Americans. Two goals came just thirty-eight seconds apart, and Joe Simpson, whose shorthanded stick gave the Rangers an awarded goal and a victory in their last previous meeting, provided the assists for both.

The second and third place teams in the Canadian division, Canadiens of Montreal and the Ottawa Senators, picked up two points apiece, with easy victories. Canadiens outclassed Toronto to win 3-1, while Ottawa, with Wally Kilrea usurping the stellar role soundly roused Pittsburgh, 3-1. Wally scored three of the goals and assisted in one more.

The Montreal Canadiens advanced two points further toward first position of the Canadian section by defeating the Toronto Leafs, 3-1, in an interesting, if unexciting, game here yesterday evening. The more experienced Canadian regulars outplayed the Leafs throughout, the Leafs depending more on their new men than on their regulars.

RIOUR GIVEN $1,000 FINE

Carnera's Opponent Heavily Fined For Poor Showing; Italian Not Blamed

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Primo Carnera, huge muscle man from Italy, was just a big, boney man and not a conspirator. This was the consensus of the Illinois State Athletic Commission yesterday after it had finished its investigation of Carnera's forty-second-second knockout of Rioux, the French-Canadian woodsman from Montreal, in the Chicago Stadium on Friday night.

Because of Rioux's unsatisfactory showing, however, he was fined $1,000 and suspended indefinitely. No action was taken against Carnera. He was held blameless and his purse of approximately $16,000 was ordered paid. Rioux's fine was deducted from his $3,000 purse.

After questioning all principals and their representatives the commission concluded there was no evidence of a conspiracy, fraud or collusion. Dave Barry, referee of the abbreviated match, said he was of the impression that Rioux was so badly frightened, he had no heart to fight.

Good and Hot Wins Golden Oriole Purse to Set Mark For Seven Furlongs

New York, Feb. 5.—Running back to his January winning days, Stars and Bars yesterday carried the colors of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable to victory in the St. Bernard handicap at the fairgrounds.

REUTHER SOLD TO INDIANS

Former Major League Star Will Pitch This Season For Seattle Club

Obtained From San Francisco Missions; Seattle Seeks Winning Club

San Francisco, Feb. 5.—Walter "Dutch" Reuther, one of the finest pitchers ever to perform in the Pacific Coast League, will dispense his left-handed wares as a member of the Seattle Indians this season. His sale, as an outright cash deal, was announced here today by Wade "Red" Killefer, president-manager of the San Francisco Missions.

After a long and notable career in the big leagues as a member of the Brooklyn Nationals, and Washington, and New York Americans, Reuther returned to the Coast circuit in 1928, as a member of the San Francisco Seals.

He led the league with twenty-nine victories that season, and after a salary dispute with the Seal owners, was sold to the Missions in the spring of 1929. With the Missions, Reuther failed to hit his stride and at the league meeting last month Killefer announced he had given the southpaw permission to make a deal for himself.

The sale price was not announced. In his efforts to build up a winning team, Killefer now has added seven new men to the payroll, and before departing from here said he would announce the names of four more players in the near future.

BOWLING

With Jimmy Hough rolling the splendid aggregate total of 805, Colonel Tyson won all three games from the Coliseum. Scribes in the Oregon League fixture, the Arcade Alley yesterday. By their victory the Tysons retained second place in the league standing, right on the heels of the Jokers. The league leader, the Jokers, rolled well over 1,000 pins in each of their three games. J. Delahanty, of the Scribes, was high individual scorer with 268 in his first game.

In the other Piveton League match the Elks managed to win the odd game in three from the Eagles. George Lapp, of the first game, was high individual and aggregate scorer with totals of 264 and 581.

Restorer trundlers sprang a big upset in the Commercial League when they won two out of the three games from James Island, occupants of second-place in the league averages. After losing the first game to the Islanders the clubhouse team came back strong to win the next two. Walter Talbot, of the Restorer, was high individual and aggregate scorer with totals of 218 and 566.

Dove of Peace Finally Hovers Over Brooklyn

Strife-torn Baseball Club Will Be Run By New Directorate

Long Battle Between Uncle Wilbert Robinson and McKeever Interests Finally Brought to an End by National League Officials; Robinson Re-engaged as Manager of Robins, While Frank B. York Will Be New President; League Adopts Schedule and Approves Board of Umpires

Canadian Press

New York, Feb. 5.—The dove of peace finally hovers over the strife-torn Brooklyn Club of the National League. The long battle between Wilbert Robinson, president-manager-director of the club, and S. W. McKeever, a director heading an opposition faction, was ended yesterday by official action of the National League, holding its spring meeting here.

Under the somewhat complicated terms of the agreement Robinson resigned as president and director and was re-engaged as manager for two years. Frank B. York, attorney for McKeever and member of the board, was elected president for two years. Robinson's successor as a director will be named by Joseph A. Gillespie, secretary and member of the board, who represents the heirs of the late Charles H. Ebbets. Still another member of the board will be named by John A. Heydler, president of the National League. The directors, when the slate is completed, will consist of McKeever, York, Gillespie and the two appointees, one by Gillespie and the other by Heydler.

HAS BEEN SORE SPOT

The Brooklyn situation has been a sore spot in the league for some years. Robinson's three-year contract as manager expired at the end of the 1929 season, and McKeever opposed its renewal, while the Ebbets heirs, holding fifty per cent of the club's stock, stood solidly behind "Uncle Robbie."

Strictly speaking, the club has been without a manager since Robinson's contract expired. The league also adopted the schedule, re-elected Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh as vice-president, and referred to the rules committee a suggestion by Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves that the rules be amended to permit umpires to eject players from games for a specified number of innings instead of for the duration of the contest.

The umpire slate for 1930 was approved as follows: William J. Klein, Charles Rigler, Ernest C. Quigley, Charles B. Moran, Charles Pittman, John E. Beardon, Louis B. Jord, Albert D. Stark, George Magerkurth, all holdovers, and Mike R. Donohue, St. Louis; Robert M. Clarke, Washington, and Ted McGrew, of Indianapolis, newcomers. This trio will succeed Bob Hart, Eddie McLaughlin and Barry McCormick.

Clarke is from the International League; Donohue from the Texas League, and McGrew from the American Association.

Harry Dillon Gets Knockout Against White

Seattle, Feb. 5.—With a wicked last-minute swing Harry Dillon of Winnipeg knocked out K. O. White, Seattle light heavyweight negro, in the sixth round of a torrid bout here last night. White weighed 172 pounds and Dillon 173½.

White held Dillon even in the first two rounds, but failed to keep up the pace in the remaining canvas. He made the Canadian miss many times with his bounding, shifting style, but he was on the defensive most of the time.

Johnny Hawkes, Wilkeson, won a six-round decision over Pele Miller, Tacoma lightweight, in the semi-final. Eddie Herman, Seattle's welterweight, defeated Don Edwards, Wenatchee, while Jack Sweeney, Powell River, B.C., and John Bray, Chesham, writer, B.C.

Columbia Has Out If Play Is Blocked

There are no set plays in basketball, said Lon Jourdan, Penn's successful advisory coach and former winning mentor, when I asked him about offense. Lon is right. There are initial movements and well-laid plans. But they so often go wrong that an attack is merely a progression of plays, one built upon the other, with individual initiative responsible in the main. Thus, when Columbia's centre makes his fast break for the basket as his guard takes a rebound, he may or he may not get free. If he is blocked something has to be done about it and done in a hurry. So his two forwards, Nos. 1 and 3 in the diagram, follow him down either side of the court, each bending in toward the basket.

Charlie "Rabbit" McVeigh

By JIMMY THOMPSON

CHARLIE "RABBIT" McVEIGH
NEW YORK AMERICANS PEPPY LITTLE FORWARD

Any time an N.H.L. team pulls one of these possible, but not probable feats, you can bet your eye teeth that there is a reason for it. Conacher's boys were not percutating up to form this season, but suddenly in about the middle of January they handed the Pirates a good sound thrashing and on the following night stepped right into the guise Bruins and ended their record run of victories that had amazed even the hardened dose critics with a winning streak of fourteen games.

The big little reason is Charlie "Rabbit" McVeigh. The "Rabbit" saw the first light of day in Kenora, Ontario, in 1898, and stepped into his first big hockey struggle in 1914 with the Kenora Juniors. For the next four years he was overseas. In 1919 we find him back at the old game with the Winnipeg Victorias. He then went to the Moose Jaw Maple Leafs for a season. He was four years with the Regina Capitals of the Western Canada Hockey League and before jumping into the "Big Tent" of the N.H.L. spent a year with the Portland Rosebuds in the Pacific Coast Hockey League. He spent a couple of years with the Chi-Hawks and now is on the American line-up where he is starring with Hines and Johnny Sheppard. There are at least two teams in the N.H.L. who think he's starring. Just ask them.

Tommy Burns Didn't Know Any Lonsdales; He Wanted His Money Before the Fight

That demand of Jack Kearns for complete fulfillment of the monetary agreement threw the Dempsey-Gilberson fight into the air until a few hours before it was to start, and almost wrecked the Montana boxers who arranged for the 1923 battle at the boom town of Shelby.

But Shelby, Mont., can take comfort out of the fact that even such a famous, wealthy and exclusive organization as the National Sporting Club of London had to dig up the cash in advance or have an important fight canceled right before the eyes of its titled membership.

Tommy Burns, recognized as champion by reason of his defeat of Marvin Hart, was matched with Gunner Moir, British heavyweight king, in 1907. But this sensation was nothing to the sensation he created earlier in the evening, when he demanded that his guarantee money be placed in his corner before he started fighting.

Getting into the ring, Burns was startled to see the hall was far from filled. There were a number of well-dressed men sitting around—but Burns couldn't see a crowd of that size totaling enough admission tickets to pay his end.

In vain did the famed Eugene Corri tell Burns that wealth and nobility abounded in the membership; that the fight was staged for the members' pleasure, and not for any profit-making. Corri named some of the club's members, among these the Rothschilds and Lord Lonsdale. Burns didn't know any Lonsdales.

His money was posted in his corner, finally, and the fight went on. Burns drew considerable censure from Britons. But as a measure of reciprocity, he made no effort to have his purse posted a year later, when, in Australia, he signed to fight Jack Johnson for $30,000, with the title at stake. And that was the biggest purse in ringdom up to that time.

This, in spite of the fact that Burns knew Hugh McIntosh, the promoter, was not wealthy, had no Rothschilds or Lonsdales behind him, and was gambling on the weather, the crowd and everything. The receipts were $131,000 and the fight gave McIntosh a financial start.

Bolby Jones On Golf

Golfer Who Follows Written Advice Should Not Exaggerate Details

It is an exceedingly difficult proposition to put into words one's conception of how a golf ball ought to be hit. It is equally hard for a person to gain a fair impression by reading a description, however accurate and authoritative it may be. The first really practical method of teaching is, of course, personal instruction, where both the teacher and the pupil have a club in hand, and one can illustrate and correct the other repeat and avar.

The great trouble with a bald description of the stroke without actual illustration is that there is almost always made an exaggerated impression of the movement sought to be described. Everything can be overdone, and usually is when one's attention is directed toward it. If one is told that a certain thing should be watched and a certain motion made, the determination to do just that almost always results in exaggeration, or in having something else undone. To strike a golf ball correctly requires a highly accurate blow. Considering this, it must be understood that various parts of the stroke cannot be very wide. Certain actions appear decided when attention is focused upon them, and many are stressed unduly in order to emphasize their value. But to read with profit, allowance must be made for exaggeration and the inclination to follow advice, although it be before one's eyes in black and white, must be tempered with reason.

A CASE IN POINT

I can still recall the first time I tried to reconstruct a golf shot from a written description. I was an awkward youngster, just in high school but tremendously interested in golf, when I read a most interesting article by Harry Vardon. In it Vardon at some length had painstakingly described what he called the "push shot." Vardon himself had made the shot famous, and I had read all about the marvels he had accomplished with it. I concluded immediately that I must, no matter what, try to do it. I must, so off I set with a barrel of old balls to the practice tee at East Lake.

I could have saved myself a lot of trouble and my warts a lot of punishment if I had consulted Stewart Maiden before I started to work. But Stewart was already giving someone a lesson. So I picked out a nice spot where there was plenty of turf to dig up, scattered out the balls, selected a mid-iron and began trying to go through the motions as I fancied Vardon had described.

The "push shot" was intended to be played with a short backswing and a vigorous punch downward through the ball. The wrist action was to be restricted, or so I gathered from the article. The purpose of the stroke was to send the ball off on a low trajectory, but with a backspin which would cause it to stop quickly about the second or third hole.

I am sure my efforts must have been funny for I dug up turf with the energy of a ditch digger working at fifty-five cents a spadeful. I obtained the low trajectory without much trouble, because I half-topped almost every shot but the backspin eluded me. When finally I looked round and saw Stewart grinning I gave up learning the push shot.

OVER EMPHASIS GIVES WRONG LEAD

My mistake was exactly that of the others who read something that sounds well yet will not work in their particular case. I exaggerated everything. Vardon wrote, I remember that he advised a forward swaying of the body to enable the player to hit a sharply descending blow. He probably meant a sway of an inch or so and an angle of contact of ten to fifteen degrees. I was swaying at least three inches and the angle was nearly 45 degrees.

Watch any good player play a fading shot intentionally—ask him to do it. Then see if your eye can detect the variation he makes in order to produce the fade. It will be largely your imagination if you can. Yet if you were told how to do it and you attempted to follow literally the explanation, you would produce something entirely unlike your normal swing. And it would not be all your fault either, for your teacher would be up against the problem of finding words to stress certain points of the stroke, without over emphasizing and without exaggerating the variation desired.

PROSPECTORS BLAME BROKERS FOR STOCK FALL

Public Confidence in B.C. Mine Development Unjustly Shaken, They Say

Speaker Urges Laws to Do Away With Gambling in Stocks and Shares

Brokers and market manipulators were termed the "enemies of the prospector" and mine developers by members of the Vancouver Island Prospectors' Association at its meeting last night, under President George Winkler, at the Island Arts and Crafts Rooms, to discuss the present Canadian market situation and its effect on the prospector and the mining industry generally.

Speakers declared that as a result of broker operations, now being revealed, public confidence in mining investment had been shattered and it would be some time before the prospectors would be able to go to the public to get their work financed, and this, in turn, would seriously hold back development of new mining areas in British Columbia.

Thomas Goble said that there were cases in which as little as 15 and 25 per cent of the money paid by the public for stock in mining companies here had got as far as the mine to be used for actual development. The rest, he said, went for commissions and rake-offs.

Rev. Robert Connell declared it would be two or three years before confidence of the public would be restored and mining financing here resumed.

STOCK, BUT NOT MINE, FAILURE

"It is said that the brokers be-devilled the whole mining game in British Columbia," President Winkler said. "The trouble is that the public regard the failure of stock on the stock exchanges as the failure of the mines, whereas that is not the case in British Columbia, where in the last year actual mining was never in better condition or more prosperous."

"It was not the public that was gambling in this last market, but it was the brokers that put the gamble in it," said R. E. Collis. "The public was seeking safe and profitable mining investment in British Columbia enterprises."

Charles McKay was the guest speaker of the evening and he went into the fundamentals of stock marketing and honest finance. He urged that Government regulations should provide that shares paid for a mining property should be placed in escrow and not released to be loaded on the public until the property had been proved up.

COAL SAFEST OF MINES

Mr. McKay pointed out that in mining investment, the least risk of all was in coal, as the stability and continuity of coal seams was notable. Iron mining came next in order of least risk, then lead and zinc, then silver and lastly gold.

"The difference in the risk involved

In the mining of each of these is answered in the price per pound we pay for each," Mr. McKay went on. "These metals stand in that relation in nature. The reason gold is as such a high price is because of its scarcity. If we are going mining these high-priced metals, we have to consider these greater risks of failure."

Dealing with last fall's break in the big markets, Mr. McKay said that a small band of 1,000 men in New York were really responsible for the break and the resulting present market, industrial and commercial depression across the continent. He asserted that these men had been built up until three months before the end of the year. Then they sold out, they considered it more profitable to take their money profits rather than to hold on to their shares for dividends.

There is nothing in the matter with the country," Mr. McKay went on, "nor with its natural resources. This was exemplified by the action of the big men, who at the low point of the market, one day alone bought more than 16,000,000 shares of stock that was being widely thrown on the market. These men had confidence and they loaded up.

LOSS OF COURAGE FELT

"The greatest damage to society through the last stock break comes from the loss of courage and daring on the part of the big holders who were forced out.

"The ideal of the stock broker is that he can increase the number of shares traded in and his profits by bull and bear methods."

PRaises B.C. GOVERNMENT

Mr. McKay complimented the British Columbia Government on the policy it is promoting to make mining and other security investments safe. He declared this policy was based on sound and righteous principles and that it was the duty of the public in British Columbia to support the law.

To make speculation safe for speculators and take the risk out of investing, Mr. McKay urged the passing by the Government of a law to do away with gambling in shares and stocks of all kinds, to put an end to buying of shares on margin and laws to end abnormal depressions and inflation. He also proposed laws to standardize companies, to protect the investments of minority shareholders and to enforce profit-sharing with employees.

He urged new laws to deal with the banks so that the government would not only regulate them but go to the point of assuming complete responsibility to the citizens for the banks and make good to the citizens if the banks failed.

WANTS LOTS OF MONEY

"Most important," Mr. McKay went on, "is that the Government should establish within the nation a supply of money adequate to carry on the industries of the country in a time of depression. Our trouble in the depression after the war was not lack of natural resources, but a lack of a normal, and adequate supply of money."

SAANICH WILL ADD CONSTABLE

Police Force Will Be Increased to Five Men in March

New Appointee Will Patrol Northern Wards; Need Is Pronounced

Saanich is to have five policemen, with a new appointee assigned to the rural wards, where he will patrol the arterial highways expected to be created by the Provincial Government. At a special meeting of the Police Commission held yesterday evening, Rev. Crouch succeeded in overcoming the reluctance of Commissioners Seale and King to increasing the police force, and advertisement of the vacancy was authorized. The appointee will be required to live north of Royal Oak, and will commence duty on March 1, being on probation for six months.

Saanich now has three constables and chief constable was informed of the addition to be made to the force by the fact that Saanich has double the population of Oak Bay which has five police officers, while Esquimalt has three officers with only a small territory to patrol compared with Saanich.

No salary increments were allowed, in view of the addition to be made to the payroll and the need of purchasing another motorcycle for the use of the new constable.

BUSY MONTH

Chief of Police Rankin reported that seventy complaints had been attended during January. Seven houses had been entered by burglars, the amounts stolen totaling $68. One unusual complaint settled was by a property owner who rented a furnished house to a tenant who took away some of the goods. Restitution in part had been secured and the tenant is paying for the remainder.

NEW FISHERIES RULES OPPOSED BY LABOR MEN

Vancouver Trades Council
Joins Fishermen Against Howe's Plan

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Feb. 4.—Yesterday evening's session of the Vancouver and New Westminster District Trades and Labor Council might be called "Protest night," for much and vigorous opposition was officially voiced on many and various subjects. The delegates objected strongly to the new fisheries regulations proposed by Hon. S. L. Howe, B.C. Minister of Fisheries; they endorsed the street railway men's recommendation that operators of one-man street cars should not be allowed to make change, issue transfers or sell tickets with the cars in motion; they objected to the marble contract on the new Royal Bank Building, being given to a United States company, and they protested against the manner in which the recent unemployment demonstrations were handled by the city police.

Protest was voiced against any attempt against a five-day week, and strong opposition was shown to a continuation or possible increase in the provincial chauffeur licenses.

Hon. S. L. Howe's fisheries regulations were bitterly attacked. It was said they simply would give full control of fishing on this coast to the canners. Independent fishermen were not recognized; it was said. The issuance of licenses to canneries and the allotment of certain boats to each cannery would place in the hands of the canners the power to force the fishermen to accept any price the canners offered, it was stated.

Delegate J. Hicks said: "The Co-operative Fishermen's Association can get no allotment of boats, yet I have heard of a cannery that was burned down years ago and other canneries that have been closed down for a long time being given their licenses and allotments of fishermen."

The council went on record as being opposed to the new regulations, and word to that effect is to be forwarded to the Government and to the fishermen's co-operative organization.

WHY SUFFER FROM YOUR LIVER?

Why be handicapped with unsightly blotches on the face, eyes with yellow tinge and that tired and languid feeling? This indicates a torpid liver. Headache, Dizziness and Biliousness surely follow. You must stimulate your lazy liver, start the bile flowing, with Carter's Little Liver Pills. They also act as a mild laxative, purely vegetable, free from calomel and poisonous drugs, small, easy to swallow, and not habit forming. They are not a purgative that cramps or pains, unpleasant after effect following, on the contrary a good tonic. All Druggists 25c and 75c red pills. (Adv.)

STAGE EFFECTS ARE UNIQUE IN

and the stage effects unusual and exceedingly exciting. Mr. McLeod plays the lead on this occasion, but all the other gentlemen of the cast have important parts. Miss Lillian Christine again has an outstanding role, while Miss Maude Blay plays an amusing character part. Miss Margaret St. Barbe-West and Miss Ann Farrer make up the excellent cast. The play, by Arnold Ridley, has always been a huge success and has just been revived in London, where it is running now. As one of the most striking stage effects takes place almost directly after the rise of the curtain, it is hoped that patrons will be seated by 8.25 o'clock.

CAPITOL HAS
NEW TALKIESLatest Equipment Installed at Local Theatre to Improve
Pictures

Patrons of the Capitol Theatre this week during the showing of the super feature "Paris" will hear for the first time the latest talking equipment. Mr. Stewart, C. Y. Keene, and E. Almslee, acoustical experts from New York, are in the city at present after installing the new machinery over the week-end. Since the advent of talking pictures in this city, great changes have taken place in the world of talking pictures, and the machine and horns now installed at the Capitol are considered the most up to date. Just like any other new innovation the changes in this line have been very rapid; in fact, its progress can readily be compared with the radio of a few years ago and the radio of the present day. Mr. Stewart, who is considered one of the foremost engineers of the Radio Corporation of America, predicts that the new installation will give 100 per cent better tone and quality than has been the case at this theatre previously. In fact, during tests which he made during this week, he predicted that the quality of talking and singing pictures will compare favorably with any of the similar types in the northwest. W. P. Dewees, the managing director of the Capitol Theatre, states that although the cost has been considerable, the results obtained will more than repay this additional outlay.

IS DEPICTED IN VARIETY PLAY

The terrible power with which dope grips its victims is graphically portrayed in the opening scene of "The Man from South Dakota," the Toby Leitch Players' comedy-drama offering at the Variety this week. In this absorbing first act, the scene of which is laid in the morals court of Chicago, a woman dope fiend is depicted as welcoming the idea of a full sentence, not as a punishment, but rather as affording a chance to escape from the life of narcotics. Thrilling drama and comedy distinguish this outstanding hit. Toby Leitch has never been in the cast in a role better suited to his unique powers as a comedian of first rank.

PICTURE STAR
IS EXPERIENCED
PLANE PILOT

Ben Lyon, who plays the featured role in "The Flying Marine," a Columbia production synchronized with dialogue, music and effects now showing at the Playhouse Theatre, keeps in trim as an aviator by spending a few hours each Sunday taking up passengers at a Los Angeles airport. Jason Roberts and Shirley Mason support Lyon in this film of daring air exploits. Albert S. Rogell directed.

JOHN BECK HAS PLAYED MANY TIMES
IN ROLE OF BUTLER

John Beck, who contributes a brief but entertaining characterization as a butler in "Colleen Moore's Smiling Irish Eyes," which is now at the Columbia Theatre, is a specialist in portraying butlers. He is able to endow each of his screen butlers with a distinct individuality.

MANY STARS OF STAGE APPEAR IN
"SUNNY SIDE UP"

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell score one of the most sensational successes of their screen careers in "Sunny Side Up," Fox Movietone musical comedy, now playing at the Dominion Theatre all this week. It is the first time either of the famous Fox stars has appeared in a musical comedy role, and their performances in this DeSylva, Brown and Henderson production proves their adaptability to this style of entertainment.

adaptability to this style of entertainment. Sharon Lynn, who made her musical debut in "Fox Movietone Pictures" of 1929, has a featured role as also has Frank Richardson, who was first heard in "Fox Pictures." Marjorie White, famous Broadway comedienne, and El Brendel, famous Swedish comedian, also are winning applause by their performance in this musical comedy of the audible screen.

SONG HITS ARE BIG FEATURE OF
CAPITOL FILM

Paris is a city of gaiety and light and fun—and music. And "Paris," the First National picture starring Irene Bordoni, now at the Capitol Theatre, is just like the city in all these respects—not least in that of music. The score of the production, in fact, is fairly overflowing with melody. Among the outstanding numbers are such tinkling and tuneful creations as "My Wonderful," "My Lover, Master of My Heart," "Somebody Mighty Like You and I," and "Wonder What Is Really on His Mind."

COLLEGE CLUB WILL PRESENT
FARCE COMEDY

"Come Out of the Kitchen" Is Title of Production This Year

The play which the Victoria College Players' Club will present this year, and for which they began rehearsals a fortnight ago, is a comedy in three acts written by A. E. Thomas, and entitled, "Come Out of the Kitchen." It was first presented in 1916 at the Cohan Theatre, New York, with Ruth Chatterton in the leading role. The plot is built entirely around a fashionable Virginia home and is based on the varying social status of the Yankee Northerner and the aristocratic Southerner.

During the formation of the cast by the College Players' Club, unusual enthusiasm was shown, the executive in most cases having to choose at least three candidates. However, now that the chosen players have been chosen, strenuous six-weekly rehearsals are the order, and the play should be produced at the beginning of next month. The story of the play is interesting. The Dangerfields, two brothers and two sisters, dwell in a mansion in Virginia, while their parents are in Europe. However, the family is not so happy as it might be. The father is very ill, the house is heavily mortgaged, and more money is wanted. "Enter the Yankee," says the play. Crane, from the north, offers an exorbitant sum as rental for the house but, he wants white servants, and those of the Dangerfields are not so happy as it might be. The father is very ill, the house is heavily mortgaged, and more money is wanted. "Enter the Yankee," says the play. Crane, from the north, offers an exorbitant sum as rental for the house but, he wants white servants, and those of the Dangerfields are not so happy as it might be. Attorney-General Says He
Will Be Given Extraordinary
Powers

Widest powers possible under any act in a British country are contained in the Stock Fraud Prevention Bill before the B.C. Legislature, Attorney-General Pooley told the House yesterday when the stockbrokers' legislation was down for second reading.

T. D. Pattullo, leader of the opposition, adjourned the debate. Mr. Pooley referred to the conference to be held in Toronto next Monday and said that although changes might be made the broad principles would probably be retained. It would be made even stronger if necessary.

The bill modeled on the Ontario Act was drastic and saved of star chamber tactics, he confessed. It tended to interfere with private business of organizations and even gave the Lieutenant-Governor power to create new offences if necessary. It would take the place of the Sales of Shares Act and blue sky legislation which had been declared ultra vires.

Regarding the section dealing with the Attorney-General's power to draft uniform legislation for regulating stock brokerage houses.

H. G. Garrett, registrar of companies, leaves for Toronto this evening. It was announced yesterday by Attorney-General Pooley, to represent the British Columbia government at the interprovincial conference dealing with the uniform legislation for regulating stock brokerage houses.

SAY ANSWERS ARE EVASIVE

Pattullo and Mackenzie
Criticize Government Replies to Queries

Exception to the nature of the answers given to questions filed by Liberal members on the grounds that they were indefinite and evasive was taken in the Legislature yesterday by T. D. Pattullo and Capt. Ian Mackenzie.

Mr. Pattullo drew attention to a question by H. F. Kergin, Liberal member for Alton, regarding the salary of G. A. Welsh as chairman of the Milk Commission and the reply of the Minister of Agriculture that Mr. Welsh was not appointed chairman. Regarding the latter question Mr. Pooley had replied he had no information. The Attorney-General should have information on such a point, Capt. Mackenzie claimed. Mr. Pooley said he had referred the point to the Superintendent of Provincial Police and he had replied that he had no information.

"The Minister of Agriculture," remarked Mr. Pooley, "would have to be a clever man to read the minds of our friends across the way."

Capt. Ian Mackenzie drew attention to questions regarding the dismissal of Dan Hiley as liquor vendor at Lillooet and another as to whether the new appointee had ever been convicted of selling liquor to Indians. Regarding the latter question Mr. Pooley had replied he had no information. The Attorney-General should have information on such a point, Capt. Mackenzie claimed. Mr. Pooley said he had referred the point to the Superintendent of Provincial Police and he had replied that he had no information.

SUPREME SUIT ARGUMENT ENDS

Judgment Reserved in Action of Jones Versus Ryder

Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald reserved judgment at the close of the hearing of Jones versus Ryder in Supreme Court yesterday afternoon, after argument by counsel had been concluded. J. B. Clearhouse appeared for the plaintiff, and R. M. MacDonald for the defendant.

Henry M. Jones sued on a claim for $5,100, alleged due on an agreement entered into with the defendant in 1922. Counsel on behalf of Samuel Ryder, of London, England, denied that such an agreement existed.

The action arose over the profits and rents of the Brookmore Hotel, part of a syndicated property of sixty square miles in the Yale district which was to have been developed in a big way when the war intervened.

Municipalities Complain About Liquor Profits

Protests were laid before the cabinet yesterday by delegates from the Sumas, Surrey, Delta and Langley municipal councils against reductions in their respective shares of the liquor profits. The government replied that deductions were made to cover sums owing by the municipalities to the government for road work done on classified roads by the public works department. This method of collecting the debts had been adopted, the delegation was told, but the cabinet promised to consider their complaint.

Reeve Fritschman, Burnaby also asked the cabinet to deal with the unemployment question. The cabinet replied that its action hinged on the reply received from Mr. Adam Bell, its representative at the recent interprovincial conference on unemployment at Winnipeg.

VICTORIAN GAINS COMMISSION IN R.C. AIR FORCE

Lieut. D. G. K. Wilson of Canadian Scottish Leaving For Camp Borden

Lieut. D. G. K. Wilson, signalling officer of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, has been notified of his appointment to the Royal Canadian Air Force, with the rank of flying officer, and has received instructions to report to the commanding officer of the air station at Vancouver, for instructions and transportation to Camp Borden, Ontario, where he will be stationed.

CREDIT TO REGIMENT HERE

He attended the local schools of Victoria, also Sprott-Shaw Business School, and helped organize the Wanderers football team, nearly all of whom were players of the present time. After a very serious injury sustained on the rugby field, he managed the team for the two seasons, during which they won the intermediate championship of the city. The majority of this old Wanderers team are now members of and play for the Canadian Scottish.

It has always been Lieut. Wilson's ambition to become an aviator, and to this end he interested himself in flying with the B.C. Airways in 1928. For the last six months he has been with the Alaska-Washington Airways of British Columbia. His present appointment to the Royal Canadian Air Force is very popular with all members of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, he being the second officer who has attained commissioned rank from the Canadian Scottish, Lieut. A. J. Farrer having been commissioned in the P.C.C.I. some eighteen months ago.

The officers in the Canadian Scottish are selected on the basis of merit from the ranks. Everyone is obliged to start at the lowest rank and is eligible for selection after qualifying in the rank of sergeant. Each year an opportunity is given to all ambitious young men to try for preferment in that the regiment operate a provisional school, commencing early in March, and finishing in July, the instruction being given in the evening at the Drill Hall. This year's school will be commenced immediately after the inspection by Brigadier J. Sutherland Brown, district officer commanding, on February 24. It is a tribute to this system and the high standard attained in the Scottish Regiment that two of its number have been selected for service in the permanent forces.

of stock for which the market called and drew attention to opportunities of British Columbia breeders for markets in Ontario and possibly Quebec. He also suggested the new association should seek co-operation from the Horsebreeders' Association of America and that the organization do educational work along lines to promote the industry.

TRACTORS VS. HORSES

A general discussion on the replacement of horsepower by motor power followed several members taking part. Mr. Patterson declared a sad state of affairs had overtaken the farmers to day. It was easy, he said, to hire someone to drive a tractor, but the driving of horses was becoming a lost art. Lack of drivers for horses was causing the farmers to turn to tractors.

A recent move of the Vancouver City Council to prevent horse traffic on Granville Street bridge at certain hours of the day was brought up. It was pointed out that this would work hardship upon certain firms in the area using horses for dray work.

TO INTERVIEW COUNCIL

After some discussion a committee was appointed to interview the Vancouver council and lay the case of the horsebreeders before it. Members of the body are here for the annual meeting of the B.C. Stockbreeders' Association this afternoon.

Boy Used a Knife to Cut Down a Tree

"If you want to see that tree fall, you come with me," said Hiram Maxim importantly to his little sister. "I'm going to make it fall to-day." His sister took her doll under her arm and followed her brother admiringly. They climbed over a fence into a neighbor's pasture. In the centre of the pasture stood a fir tree. The sister knew that Hiram had been hacking at it with a butcher knife. They reached the tree, and she sat down a short distance off, while Hiram cut away. But nothing happened. Pretty soon she grew tired and went home.

The next day, though, Hiram told her he was sure the tree was ready to fall, so again she sat and waited, and again nothing happened. The third day she wouldn't go at all, so there was no one there to see Hiram's triumph when the tree really fell. Though there was no one at the time, some one arrived soon after. The owner happened to hear the tree fall, and he came running up, angrily, for the tree furnished shade for his cattle. He began to scold Hiram, who was quite surprised. Then the owner caught sight of the butcher knife. "You didn't cut it down with that?" he exclaimed. When Hiram told him that he had cut about eight hours every day for two weeks with the knife to make the tree fall, the owner shook his head and declared that any boy who had so much persistence should be forgiven.

Sir Hiram Stevens Maxim, born ninety years ago to-day in Maine, became an inventor. Among other things he invented the automatic gun. (Copyright, 1930, by Republic Syndicate, Inc.)

Methods of U.S. Agencies Draw Criticism From Attorney-General

New Legislation Calls For Books to Be Kept Within Province

Steps to stop operation in British Columbia of United States collecting agencies which make a business of securing lists of debts and collecting them for their clients were taken in the B.C. Legislature yesterday when Attorney-General Pooley introduced a bill to license collecting agencies. The bill was given second reading.

Mr. Pooley cited instances where British Columbia merchants had turned over the business of collecting outstanding accounts to agencies across the line and then in turn had had considerable difficulty in securing the money which the agencies had collected. In some instances merchants protested they had been unable to secure any return. Merchants of British Columbia were behind the bill, the Attorney-General said. Every County Court judge and magistrate of small debts courts in the Province with the exception of one who had not given an opinion on the bill would require to secure a license at a cost of $25 and furnish a $2,500 bond. Proper books or accounts must be kept and the license. Employers are made responsible if an employee cannot produce a license.

Exemption is made in the case of men employed by a firm to collect the amounts of that firm.

MOTOR BILL MAKES MANY REGULATIONS

who receive class A chauffeurs' licenses. Class B will cover the ordinary chauffeur. "We have had trouble with delivery wagon boys who are one day in charge of a wagon and the next in charge of a big passenger car which they are not fitted to drive," the Attorney-General remarked.

Class B licenses will be for delivery truck drivers.

The bill calls for all cars to pull into the curb when a fire alarm or police patrol alarm is sounded. It will be compulsory to slow down where warning signs are posted and conform to the speed specified on the sign. The speed law passing a school will be increased from ten to fifteen miles an hour. Cars were under better control now than when the law was specified, said Mr. Pooley, and nobody observed the ten-mile limit.

MINORS LIMITED

Regarding the change in minors' licenses, Mr. Pooley said the police had had a great deal of difficulty with boys using driver's cars. Minors would still be allowed licenses to meet the cases of fathers who wished their sons to use their cars. The license would carry the license of one particular car, and the holder would be permitted to drive no other car.

Delay in the cancellation of drivers' licenses will be eliminated by a clause which permits the magistrate to suspend a license at once and then submit it to the superintendent of Provincial Police.

Provision is made that where an autist successfully appeals against a conviction he shall be given a clean license again.

Mr. Pooley promised to speak later on a clause providing for all fees to go into the consolidated revenue of the province. The bill provides that the reporting of minor accidents will not be necessary. Because of the law which requires every accident to be reported, the British Columbia at present has a record of accidents higher than any province in the Dominion or any state in the United States. The bill proposes to make it necessary to report accidents only when the damage is over $25.

Ship's Crew Of Twenty Rescued

Helsingfors, Finland, Feb. 5.—Finnish pilot boats to-day succeeded in rescuing all of the crew of twenty of the Danish freighter Nelly, wrecked Sunday during a storm in the Gulf of Finland. Storms and gales hitherto had prevented rescue vessels approaching. The Nelly was covered with ice when the rescuers finally reached her.

Horoscope

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1930

Contending planetary influences are keen in to-day's horoscope, according to astrology. The marriage way is more favorable than the later rule of the stars. There is a sign of much promise to workers who should profit greatly as the year advances.

In the early hours the planetary government favors mental creation of every sort. Students should benefit especially.

It should be a lucky day for aviators who will benefit by means of increased expenditures on the part of managers of aerial navigation facilities.

The planetary government is fortunate for all who seek employment and especially for those who have been carefully trained. Science is to progress about with hope at this time when medical discoveries will contribute to human welfare.

Under the direction of the stars holders of political office probably will not benefit. The rule encourages initiative and yet does not promise public approval.

This should be a happy wedding day under certain conditions, but there is a warning aspect that seems to indicate that parents may be difficult to manage.

Kiss Alfonso of Bona, who comes under a direction of the stars that presages disturbing conditions. The spirit of democracy may be slightly apparent. A great military element that will be of far-reaching significance is foretold for Italy.

International disagreements between Great Britain and other powers seem to be prepared for the spring. Persons whose birthdate it is may have romance within the year, if they are young, or even middle-aged. It is well to be exceedingly circumspect in all things. Children born on this day probably will be distinguished by high ambition and intellectual power. Many persons of striking individuality belong to the sign.

Sir Henry Irving, English actor, was born on this date, 1832. Others who have celebrated it as birthdays include William Maxwell Evans, famous lawyer, 1818; Elizabeth Patterson Bonaparte, 1795.

Local Fox Men Continue With National Body

Decision to remain with the Canadian National Association of Silver Fox Breeders was made by the British Columbia branch of that organization at its annual meeting in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday evening. In view of the fact that some members of the local association were allowing cross animals to run with their pure stock on ranches, they had lost eligibility in the national association and sought to form a provincial body which would recognize and record their animals.

The faction adhering to the former rulings and breeding only pure silver foxes secured a majority vote when the question was put before the meeting, and will continue to function as usual. J. W. Bell, of the Malahat Fox Ranch, was elected temporary president of the local association until a larger meeting could be called to hold proper elections. A. F. Dack, of the Dack Fox Ranch, Langford, was named secretary to work with the following temporary executive members: Dr. Oulis, M.P.P., of Merritt; Capt. MacKenzie, of Duncan, and Mrs. Myran, of Victoria. The above are all prominent breeders of national registered silver foxes.

During the meeting Miller Higgs made his report as representative of the British Columbia body to the Canadian National Association at Ottawa.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)
Winnipeg, Feb. 5.—Wheat: A statement made by Premier Bracken in the Manitoba Legislature last night that the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta had come to the aid of the Canadian wheat pool by guaranteeing the banks against loss for money advanced in the handling of this season's crop, was the main feature in the market this morning.

The statement at first was construed as rather bullish and during the first part of the market session there was some buying by commission houses and a certain amount of short covering on the part of the trade. This caused an upward turn in prices of about one cent, but the market quickly drifted into a quiet affair with very little doing, and no outside interest shown and no buying by exporters as business overnight was again very small and what was worked was done by the pool and was not reflected locally and prices drifted lower, getting one cent under the previous close.

The fact that the pool has been forced to apply to the three prairie governments for assistance was taken as evidence that the pool were in a tight financial situation with the banks pressing the repayment, the latter seeing little hope of immediate improvement unless foreign demand improved materially of which there is no present indication.

The cash market continued extremely dull with offerings light and demand indifferent. Wheat export sales had been very small and there was no foreign demand for flour. Foreign advances stated that Russia was again selling wheat and offering both wheat and rye liberally. The situation is most unusual, with heavy supplies in North America, and the trade generally appears to be at sea.

Coarse grains: The weakness in wheat was again reflected in the coarse grains, especially rye with scattered liquidation in evidence. There was practically nothing doing in the cash market except an occasional odd lot.

Flax: This market was steady with very little going on, no feature.

SMELTERS RECOVERS 5 P.C. TO 230; NICKEL NEAR 40

Montreal, Feb. 5.—Consolidated Smelters advanced to 230, five points above yesterday's close, on the Montreal Stock Exchange to-day. Price changes locally were on the whole trifling.

Annual report of the meeting of Shawinigan shareholders passed unopposed on the Exchange, the stock moving only fractionally. Montreal Power reached 133, off 1. The others in the power group saw little trading. International Nickel, again in heavy demand, held steady between 39 1/2 and 39 3/4. Brazilian Traction was inclined to be heavy, selling off 1/2 to 27 1/2.

Cash Power and Paper held around 12 1/2, a new low for the issue, while Abitibi was unchanged and Brompton 10 1/2.

Nickel's feat in touching 39 1/2 in the face of the general heaviness of the list, brought it to a new high on the current upward swing.

General Steel Wares again was weak, off 1/4, at 16 1/2. Construction issues of the day were about unchanged. Famous Players picked up half a point to 50.

Other issues were practically neglected. The turn-over was comparatively light.

VANCOUVER STOCK EXCHANGE

Vancouver, Feb. 5.—Heavy buying of Premier Gold, which carried the price back up to 130, was the only feature on the Vancouver Stock Exchange to-day.

The mines were mostly firmer. Trading in the oils was mostly in small blocks. Home Oil held between 9.75 and 10.00.

The bulk of traders invariably, after purchasing stock at a bargain price, will hold on during a rising market, instead of profit-taking throughout the rise and immediately a weakness is noticed in the market, will unload, forcing their stock on a market unable to withstand selling pressure and causing a drop. Miller, Court and Company say to-day.

Give Your Children BUILD and Build up Their Strength

The Three Hostages

JOHN BUCHAN

"So?" he said. "he has taken again his father's name, which was Neuhover. We knew him as Kristoffer. What do you want with him?"

"Nothing that any honest German wouldn't approve," and there and then I gave him a sketch of the Medina business. He exclaimed in horror.

"Mr. Hannay," he said hesitatingly, "you are being honest with me?"

"I swear by all that's holy I am telling you the plain truth, and the full truth. Neuhover may have done anything you jolly well like in the War. But he was a German, and after him to get a line on a foul business which is English in origin. I want to put a spoke in the wheel of English criminals and to save innocent lives. Besides, Neuhover is only a subordinate. I don't propose to raise a finger against him, only to find out what he is doing."

He held out his hand. "I believe you," he said, and I can tell you I believe him.

He conducted me through the long street of the village, past the inn where I supposed Neuhover was now going to bed, and out on to the road which ran up the Skars valley. We came in sight of the river, a mighty current full of molten snow, sweeping in noble curves through the meadowland in that uneasy dusk. It appeared that he judged with Peter Bower, who had a spare bed, and when we reached the cottage, which stood a hundred yards from the highway on the very brink of the stream, Peter was willing to let me have it. His wife gave us supper—omelette, smoked salmon, and some excellent Norwegian beer—and after I got out my map and had a survey of the neighborhood.

Gaudian gave me a grisly picture of the condition of his own country. It seemed that the downfall of the old regime had carried with it the decent wise men like himself, who had opposed its follies, but had lined up with it on patriotic grounds when the war began. He said that Germany was no place for a moderate man, and that the power lay with the bloated industrialists, who were piling up fortunes abroad while they were wrecking their country at home. The only opposition, he said, came from the communists, who were hated by the industrialists, and the monarchists, who wanted the impossible. "Reason is not listened to, and I fear there is no salvation till my poor people have passed through the last extremity. You foreign Powers have hastened our destruction, when you had it in your hands to save us. I think you have meant well, but you have been blind, for you have not supported our moderate men and have by your harshness played the game of the wreckers among us."

It appeared that he was very poor, like all the professional classes. I thought it odd that this man, who had a world-wide reputation as an engineer, could turn a big income in any country he chose. Then I saw that it was because he had lost the wish to make money. He had seen too deep into the vanity of human wishes to have any ambition left. He was unmarried, with no near relations, and he found his pleasure in living simply in remote country places and watching flowers and beasts. He was a keen fisherman, but couldn't afford a good boat, so he leased a few hundred yards from a farmer who had not enough water to get proper rent for it, and he did a lot of trout fishing in the fern-high up in the hills and in the Skars above the fens. As he sat facing me beyond the stove, with his kind and brown eyes and his rugged face, I thought how like he was to a Scotch Moorland shepherd. He had liked him when I first saw him in Stumm's company, but now I liked him so much that because of him I was prepared to think better of the whole German race.

I asked him if he had heard of any other Englishman in the valley—any one of the name of Jason, for instance. He said no, he had been there for three weeks, but the fishing did not begin. "I am another fortnight, and foreign visitors had not yet arrived. Then I asked him about the sea-side farms, and he said that few of these were open yet, since the few pastures were not ready. One or two on the lower altitudes might be already inhabited, but not many, though the winter had been a mild one and the spring had come early. "Look at the Skars," he said. "Usually in April it is quite low, for the snowfields have not begun to melt. But to-day it is as brimming as if it were the middle of May."

He went over the map with me—an inch-to-a-mile one I had got in London—and showed me the lie of the land. The saeters were mostly far up the river, reached by paths up the tributary glens. There was a good road running the length of the valley, but no side roads to connect with the parallel glens, the Urdal and the Bremedal. I found indeed one track marked on the map, which led to the Urdal by a place called Snaasen. "Yes," said Gaudian, "that is the only thing in the way of what you soldiers would call lateral communication. I've walked it, and I'm sorry for the man who tries the road in bad weather. You can see the beginning of the track from this house. It climbs up beside the torrent just across the valley. Snaasen is more or less inhabited all the year round, and I suppose you would call it a kind of saeter. It is a sort of shelter hut for travellers taking that road, and in summer it is a paradise for flowers. You would be surprised at the way the natives can cross the hills even in winter. Snaasen belongs to the big farm two miles upstream, which carries with it the best beat on the Skars. Also there is said to be a first-class typer shooting later in the year, and an occasional bear. By the way, I rather fancy some one told me that the whole thing was owned by, or had been leased to, an Englishman. You are rich, you see, and you do not leave much in Norway for poor people."

I slept like a log on a bed quite as hard as a log, and woke to a brilliant blue morning, with the birds in the pine woods fairly riotous, and snipe drumming in the boggy meadows. I could see the water almost up to the pathway of a long wooden bridge that led to the big farm Gaudian had spoken of. I got my glasses on the torrent opposite, and saw the track to Snaasen winding up beside it till it was lost in a fold of the ravine. Above it I scanned the crown of the ridge, which was there much lower than on the sides of the fjord. There was no snow to be seen, and I knew by a sort of instinct that if I got up there I should find a broad tableland of quivering pastures with old snow-drifts in the hollows and tracts of scrubby dwarf birch.

While I was waiting for breakfast I heard a noise from the highroad, and saw a couple of the little conveyances they call stollkars passing. My glass showed me Dr. Neuhover in the first and a quantity of luggage in the second. They took the road across the wooden bridge to the big farm, and I could see the splash of their wheels at the far end of it, where the river was over the road. So Dr. Neuhover, or some friends of his, was the lessee of this famous fishing, which carried with it the shooting on the uplands behind it. I rather thought I should spend the day finding out more about Snaasen, and I counted myself lucky to have got quarters in such an excellent observation post as Peter Bower's cottage.

I wouldn't go near the track to Snaasen till I saw what Neuhover did, so Gaudian and I sat patiently at Peter Bower's window. About ten o'clock a couple of ponies laden with kit in charge of a tow-headed boy appeared at the foot of the track and slowly climbed up the ravine. An hour later came Dr. Neuhover, in a suit that looked like khaki, and wearing a long mackintosh cape. He strode out well and breathed the steep pass like a mountaineer. I wanted to go off myself in pursuit of him, keeping well behind, but Gaudian very sensibly pointed out how sparse the cover was, and that if he saw a man on that lonely road he would certainly want to know all about him.

We sat out-of-doors after luncheon in a pleasant glare of sun, and by-and-by were rewarded by the sight of the pack-ponies returning, laden with a different size and shape kit. They did not stop at the big farm, but crossed the wooden bridge and took the highroad for Merald. I concluded that this was the baggage of the man whom Neuhover had replaced, and that he was returning to Stavanger. In Kristian Egge's boat. About tea-time the man himself appeared—Jason, or whatever his name was. I saw two figures come down the ravine, by the Snaasen road, and stop at the foot and exchange farewells. One of them turned to go back, and I saw that this was Neuhover, climbing with a stick and a man accustomed to hills. The other crossed the bridge, and passed within half of us—a foppish young man, his glass told me, wearing a mackintosh and a hat with a feather. I was very satisfied with what I had learned. I had seen Neuhover relieve his predecessor, just as a doctor had planned, and I knew where he was lodged. Whatever his secret was it was hidden in Snaasen, and to Snaasen I would presently go. Gaudian advised me to wait till after supper, when there would be light enough to find the way, and not too much to betray us. "So we both lay down and slept for four hours, and took the road about ten-thirty as fresh as yearlings."

It was a noble night, windless and mild, and though darkness lurked in the thickets and folds of hill, the sky was filled with a translucent amethyst glow. I felt as if I were out on some sporting expedition, and enjoyed every moment of the walk with that strung-up expectation, enjoyment which one gains in any form of chase. The torrent made wild music on our left hand, grumbling in pits and shooting over ledges with a sound like a hundred slides, but I had to guess at them by their sounds and size, for there was no color in that shadowy world.

By-and-by we reached the top and had a light cold wind on our faces blowing from the snowy mountains to the north. The place seemed a huge broken tableland, and every hollow glistened as if filled with snow or water. There were big dark shapes ahead of us which I took to be the hills beyond the Urdal. Here it was said to be a first-class typer shooting later in the year, and an occasional bear. By the way, I rather fancy some one told me that the whole thing was owned by, or had been leased to, an Englishman. You are rich, you see, and you do not leave much in Norway for poor people."

BEDTIME STORY Uncle Wiggily's Night Flier

(Copyright, 1930)

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Now don't stay too late," called Mrs. Longears to her husband and some of the little rabbit children as they started away from the hollow stump bungalow one evening.

"I'll see that they start home early," promised Uncle Wiggily.

"Hal Hal!" laughed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy who had just put the milk bottle out on the steps where it could give an early morning greeting to the postman in case he happened to bring a jug of molasses.

"What are you laughing at?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know, sort of twinkling his pink nose delicate like.

"I'm laughing at the idea of you starting any one home early, or starting early yourself!" chuckled the mischievous housekeeper. "You know this is a little animal children's party you are going to Mr. Longears, and you know how jolly well you like fun and how fond you are of children."

"I know all that—yes, of course," answered the bumpy uncle. "But why can't we all start home early before it is too dark?"

"Because you'll be having such a good time, that's why," answered Nurse Jane.

"Oh, but you must bring them home early, Wiggily," his wife said to him. "You know it gets cold and dark after the sun goes down, and to-night there is no moon so it will be extra dark."

"I promise you I won't," Uncle Wiggily said, and then he and Baby Bunty and Cutie and Tootie with Jingle and Floppy, and a number of other rabbits and other boys and girls rabbits hopped over the fields and through the woods.

"We got lots to eat!" granted Curly.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Twistail, the nice pigs, were giving a little February party for their boys Curly and Floppy, and had invited Uncle Wiggily and many of his little rabbit boys and girls.

Soon Mr. Longears and his children were at the pen house where Mr. Twistail lived. Even before they arrived the rabbits could smell the good things to eat. Mr. Twistail was very fond of good food and he was bringing his children up as good boys.

"Welcome to the party, my dears!" granted the lady pig as she opened the door for the rabbit guests. "Come right in!"

"We got lots to eat!" granted Curly, who stood in the hall.

"Heaps of good things!" squealed Floppy.

"Oh, my goodness! What a thing to say!" granted his mother.

"Well, isn't it all right?" asked Squawkie Squealer, the little pig brother. "Didn't they come to the party to have good things to eat and isn't it polite to let them know there's plenty?"

"Why, of course it is!" said Uncle Wiggily, thinking the little pigs might feel sad about having made a mistake. "A party without something good to eat wouldn't be a party at all."

"That's what I think!" said Jingle. "And I'm glad we came!" added Jingle.

"When do we eat?" asked Baby Bunty. And then everybody laughed and they all felt better. Mr. Twistail laughed so hard that he hiccuped over a big bowl of lemonade that had been set to get warm under the kitchen stove, and it splashed on the floor.

"Come on in!" begged Curly and Floppy. "We'll play some games and then we'll eat."

In hopped Baby Bunty, Uncle Wiggily and all the others, and soon the party was in full swing. There were other animal children besides the rabbits and pigs and many games were played. At the best time of all—when the good things to eat were passed around.

I am not allowed to tell you what they had for a feast, you would want to eat, and as it must be near bedtime, eating wouldn't be so good for you. However, I am allowed to tell you there was carrot candy and corn pudding with gumdrops in it. And lots more besides.

Then more games were played, and all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily looked at the clock and saw how late it was and he remembered that he had promised to bring the rabbit children home early so he said:

"I am sorry to break up this lovely party, but we must go, my dear Mrs. Twistail. We have had a lovely time."

"Wonderful!" murmured bunny boys and girls. Though they didn't want to leave they knew it was best. So, while they were getting on their warm clothes, Mr. Twistail opened the door and looked out into the cold, black night. As he did so Uncle Wiggily, who was standing near the door, saw something very queer past.

"Must be an aeroplane," granted the pig gentleman.

"Oh, no! Shh! Shh! That's a night flier but not an aeroplane! Oh, there's danger!"

But don't worry! What the danger was, and how Uncle Wiggily and the little rabbits had an adventure with the night flier, you shall hear tomorrow. Then, if the pussy cat will pull the cork out of the popgun so it can't shoot the bottle of milk, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily and the night eyes.

Old Maid
versus Bachelor
Girl

Dorothy Dix

Finds a Liability
Has Become an Asset

The Old Maid, as a Species, Is Almost as Extinct As the Dodo—Her Place Has Been Taken by the Bachelor Girl, Who Finds the Lure of Modern Business Far More Absorbing Than Marriage.

A YOUNG woman asks: "What is the difference between an Old Maid and a Bachelor Girl?" It is psychological. It is a state of mind. It is the difference between I cannot and I will. It is the difference between taking your choice and balking desire. It is the difference between being envied and being pitied. The Old Maid, as a species, is almost as extinct as the dodo. She survives only in provincial communities where she is regarded as a freak of nature and looked down upon by her married sisters, even by such as acquired drunkards, rouses and ne'er-do-wells in the matrimonial lottery.

The Old Maid is a left-over from the days when marriage was the only respectable gainful occupation open to women and when a husband was not only a woman's meal ticket but her card of admission to society and her emancipation proclamation. Then a woman had no way of making an honest living for herself. She was forced to be the fringe on some family that did not want her and she was supposed to need a chaperon up to her nineteenth birthday.

Such being the case, it was obvious that the chief aim and object of every woman's life was to secure a husband as soon as possible, and when one failed to marry the inference was that she was so lacking in attractions that no man would have her. Thus did the term "Old Maid" become a stigma that was even as the brand of Cain on a woman, and the Old Maid came to be looked upon with mingled pity and contempt.

The Old Maid was a product of the past. The Bachelor Girl is the out-put of this sophisticated modern age. It is significant that the appellation "Old Maid" has become practically obsolete and one rarely hears it used except in rural communities. Neither is she tagged as a Girl Bachelor. Her marital state is so unimportant it is not even mentioned.

The Old Maid, then, was a woman who wanted to marry but couldn't. The Bachelor Girl is a woman who for good and sufficient reasons of her own does not desire to marry. Perhaps she is a woman who is celibate by nature. Perhaps Mr. Right has not come along and she will not take any makeshift husband just for the sake of being married. Perhaps she prefers to espouse a career to a husband and would rather make a name for herself than to take any man's. Perhaps making-money appeals to her more than romance.

At any rate she doesn't have to marry either for support or for something to fill her life with interest and give a purpose to it. Every door of opportunity is open to her and her success is limited only by her own ability. She is free to go and come as she pleases and to set up her own home without fear of scandal, and because everybody knows that she could either take marriage or leave it, the fact that she remains unmarried is no reflection on her charms.

The Old Maid was often sour and disgruntled, one in whom all the milk of human kindness had turned to clabber, and she was filled with a bitter enmity toward the men who had passed her over. Also, she revenged herself on a society that made her a jeering and a hissing by stabbing it in the back with a malicious tongue that cut sharper and deeper than a two-edged sword. Hence the Old Maid was feared and disliked and about as popular as a pot of poison.

Far otherwise is it with the Bachelor Girl. She has chosen the role in life she preferred and is happy and content with her lot. She cherishes no grudge against men, and while she does not want to marry any one of them, she values and enjoys their comradeship and is a man-lover rather than a man-hater.

Having her own money, she dresses well. Having her own latchkey, she goes about to lectures and concerts and to see the new plays and has a thousand interests in a thousand different subjects. You will find no women more alert, more entertaining, jollier or more agreeable than the Bachelor Girl and none who are more sought after by hostesses for dinner parties.

The Old Maid was a firebrand in every community. She was a gossip manufacturer. She was the self-appointed mentor of morals. She made mountains out of mole hills, and widened the rift between friends into an unbridgeable gulf. Having no business of her own, she made everybody's business her affair. Having no interests of her own, she listened at every keyhole and poked her nose into every one's secrets.

The Bachelor Girl is too much occupied living her own life to have leisure to regulate any one else's. She is so busy going somewhere herself she hasn't time to watch the step of her neighbor's. She isn't half so concerned about how the Thompsons get along together as about how she can get along with a crotchety boss. She isn't worrying over whether the widow Jones will catch the new preacher. What she is lying awake at night thinking about is about how she will sell a bill of goods. Nor does she consider the Smith girl an abandoned creature because she kissed the Blank boy good night and feel that she should broadcast such goings on. She has seen such a lot of foolish girls do foolish things and then turn out to be wise, good women.

The Old Maid was regarded as a total loss to her family. It was because Mary would be a milestone around the necks of the family as long as she lived if she didn't marry that made families rush a girl into the arms of the first man who looked willing. Every married brother and sister looked forward with dread to the time when father and mother would die and they would have an old maid sister wished upon them.

The Bachelor Girl is not looked upon as a liability but as an asset, for not only does she refuse to go to live with her married brothers and sisters, but she is an ever-present refuge in times of trouble, and it is to her that they appeal when they are behind with the rent and the baby needs new shoes and the grocer is getting ugly. And it is the Aunt Sallys and Cousin Sues with no husband or children of their own who are putting a lot of ambitious boys through college and buying party frocks for pretty girls.

And lastly but not least, the difference between the Old Maid and the Bachelor Girl is that girls used to marry men that they didn't love to keep from being Old Maids and now a lot of girls are turning down men they do like because they prefer to be Bachelor Girls.

If the empty jars in the preserve cupboard outnumber the full ones, perhaps some dried fruit butters and marmalade will help make the fresh fruit preserves last until spring for special occasions.

Citrus fruit marmalades can be made as cheaply now as any time and will be particularly relished when jaded appetites need toning up.

COMBINATION CONSERVE
One-half pound dried peaches, 1/2 pound dried apricots, 1 pound prunes, 2 oranges, 1/2 cup seedless raisins, 1/2 cup nut-meats, 1 1/2 pounds sugar.

Wash peaches, prunes and apricots through several waters. Let peaches and apricots stand in cold water to cover for three hours and drain. Cover all the fruits with cold water and let stand over night. In the morning, simmer in the same water until very tender and rub through a sieve. Put into preserving kettle and add grated rind and juice of oranges, raisins and sugar. Bring to the boiling point and cook until mixture thickens and becomes clear. Add nut meats and cook ten minutes longer. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

The following recipe is for a combination citrus fruit marmalade that is particularly delicious.

THREE FRUIT MARMALADE

One grape fruit, 1 large orange, 1 large lemon, 10 cups granulated sugar. Wash fruit and wipe dry. Cut into quarters. Then cut the quarters through the peel and pulp into very thin slices, discarding the seeds and the white pith in the center. Let the fruit stand in 14 cups of cold water over night. Cook until peel is very tender. It will take several hours. Let stand over night again. In the morning add sugar and cook until syrup thickens. Turn into sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin when cold. This will make about twelve large glasses of marmalade.

ASSOCIATION OF FISHERMEN FORMED TO-DAY

U.S. Halibut Fishermen of the Pacific Coast Organized; Capitalized at $150,000

Seattle, Feb. 5.—The United Pacific Fisheries Inc., capitalized at $150,000, composed of 990 halibut fishermen, representing 200 of a total of 300 vessels, was organized in Seattle to-day. Approximately two-thirds of the fishing vessel owners of the coast became members with the completion of organization.

The company will make an effort to stabilize fish prices and guarantee a fair profit to fishermen and boat owners. A nation-wide advertising campaign, calling attention to the halibut as a food, is being planned by the organization.

Negotiations were under way to-day to purchase the plant of the Ripley Fish Company on the Seattle waterfront.

Trustees named for a ten-year period were: Otto K. Strick, president of the American Exchange Bank; Wm. S. Martin, attorney for the fishermen; and Frank Kwapiel of the fishing vessel owners.

CANADIANS RETURN ON MINNEDOSA

H. O. Bell-Irving and Others Return From England; London Engineer to Study B.C. National Librarian of Iceland Arrives to Lecture in Canada on Iceland

St. John, N.B., Feb. 5.—A number of well-known Canadians returned to Canada yesterday from the Pacific liner Minnedosa, Great Britain on board the Canada which docked at West St. John during the afternoon.

Col. H. W. Laws, C.M.G., D.S.O., of London, England, well-known mining engineer, arrived on board the Minnedosa and proceeded to Vancouver over Canadian Pacific lines.

"The possibilities for development in the mining industry in British Columbia are great," Colonel Laws said, "that I have determined to settle in Vancouver and open an office there, as the consulting engineer—business in London in mining is not as important as good as it is in the west. I believe that British Columbia offers greater opportunities to men of experience."

Arne Pailson, National Librarian of Iceland, who is going to make a lecture tour of the principal cities of Canada under the auspices of the National Council of Education, arrived in Vancouver on board the Minnedosa. His lectures will have as subjects "Iceland Literature," "The Political History of Iceland," and "The Economic Progress Made by Iceland in the Last Thirty Years."

As the oldest surviving democracy in the world, Iceland's early history should be of special interest to Britishers and Canadians," Mr. Pailson said, when interviewed on his arrival. "Iceland is the only country in the world where the people have nearly resembling parliaments of modern democracies was inaugurated in Iceland in A.D. 930. It is still functioning under the same laws and rules laid down in that remote era, and it could be best defined by calling it the parliament of an aristocratic republic, the aristocracy being landowners. It is called the 'Althing'."

In 1260 A.D. Iceland was conquered by Norway after a period of civil strife. Iceland's history is similar to that of many smaller European countries, a continuous revolt against foreign rule. When Norway passed under Danish rule, Iceland was finally recognized by the Danish monarchy, inaugurated by the Danish king in 1550, created great hardship in Iceland. This monopoly was not abolished until 1854, but only this was achieved, Iceland was set definitely on the road to prosperity and independence from Denmark. In 1918 Iceland was finally recognized by Denmark and other nations as a sovereign state after nearly 700 years of foreign rule."

Mr. Pailson left by the Canadian Pacific special boat train for Montreal yesterday afternoon, where he will give his first lecture within the next few days. He will give twenty lectures throughout Canada and return to Iceland at the end of April.
